WOMAN GIVES LOST GIRL CLEW

Claims Thaw Was Railroaded to Asylum

SENTENCE ILLEGAL, BRIEF SAYS

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 28.—Harry Thaw's attorneys sprang a sensation when they filed his newest brief in support of his fight for freedom. They boldly assert that he was "railroaded into Matteawan," and that he is not charged with a crime in the indictment New York State has presented —through "Nemesis" Jerome—and they claim that therefore there is no ground for extradition.

This newest argument is based upon a strict construction of the New York laws, and the major portion of the brief is devoted to it. The attorneys for Thaw claim that the law under which he was sent to Matteawan was contrary to the Constitution of the United States, and that he had a right to escape from Matteawan at any time, provided he was able to do so. The brief says:

"Was Thaw's detention in Matteawan a lawful detention? If it was not, he had a right to effect his escape and he had a right to conspire to escape.

"At the close of his trial for homicide he was acquitted by the jury on the ground that he was insane at the time he committed the act. Without further trial or hearing he was railroaded into Matteawan.

"This was done without notice to him, without hearing, without a chance to produce witnesses in his behalf, and without a right of appeal.

"Justice Rich says: 'That the commitment of Thaw was essentially temporary cannot be seriously questioned,' and Justice Jenks says, 'The order of commitment settles nothing finally or conclusively against the person committed.'

"Are these facts? Was Thaw committed temporarily until the question of his sanity at the time of his commitment could be determined upon notice and hearing by a court of competent jurisdiction, or was his commitment permanent and final under the statute? By no stretch of the imagination can it be said that it was a temporary commitment. It was for an indefinite length of time until he should be discharged by 'due coure of law.' It was a commitment which might continue for life. It was as final and conclusive as final sentence and commitment under any criminal statute."

GROUND FOR COMPLAINT.

"It is this adjudication against him without trial that he has a right to complain against. The question of his sanity on February 1, 1908, was never tried, was never formally charged against him, and never defended against by him. Any statute which permits a court to pass final sentence against a person depriving him of his

BOSTON MAN SUED BY DIVORCED HUSBAND OF VIOLET COLBY

Violet Colby, who has been awarded divorce from J. Clarence Harvey, comedian. Mr. Harvey is now suing Boston millionaire. Photograph by International News Service.

J. Clarence Harvey, a comedian, has sued a Boston millionaire for $100,000 damages, according to dispatches today, on the ground that the millionaire and Mrs. Harvey, who is Violet Colby on the stage, took an extended tour of European cities shortly before Mrs. Harvey brought suit for divorce.

Mrs. Harvey has been granted a divorce in New York. She accused her husband of cultivating the acquaintance of a Winter Garden show girl, on a recent visit to Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Harvey alleges that his wife and the millionaire gave the greater part of Europe a distinct crimson hue on their tour abroad. He says that the anxiety he felt for his wife during the several weeks he could not locate her, and the subsequent shock of discovery, with other emotional buffetings is worth no less than $100,000 to him.

Harvey's many friends of "The Passing Show," as well as a large circle of acquaintances in Los Angeles, were deeply concerned last July when Harvey made known that he had lost his wife. He imagined her several weeks' silence to be due to each of many causes in succession—illness, accident, war, flood, disaster, pestilence, even death.

But, alas! says Harvey now, it was none of these; in the complaint the long season wherein there was no letter, no word, no message, is ascribed to the devotion of his beautiful helpmeet to the opulent Bostonese.

During his stay in the West last July Harvey wired to nearly everybody abroad who might help him locate Violet Colby. She had sailed February 20 for London, with the wife of Herbert Corthell, a comedian. Mrs. Corthell returned in May, but not so Mrs. Harvey. The letters ceased in the latter part of June, he said, and in May Harvey kept the wires busy, but to no effect.

As Violet Colby, Mrs. Harvey is well known as a soprano. She is the daughter of an excellent Philadelphia family and began her stage career in 1906. She was a star within a few years. She and Harvey fell in love during their engagement with "The Half Moon" in 1908 and were married soon after.

The proceedings in Mrs. Harvey's divorce suit were secret, and the papers were sealed when they reached the Supreme Court.

It was learned, however, that a showgirl now at the Winter Garden was named. Testimony showed she and Harvey had been shadowed by private dectectives last July in San Fancisco.

The referee in the divorce suit thus connected on this claim:

"What possible excuse can a married man have for remaining in a room with a woman not his wife, night after night, for two or three hours at a time. We have it of old, that it is 'presumed he saith not a paternoster there.'"

When Bargains Ripen in Real Estate

This is the time to select that piece of ground, or the house and lot which is going to figure so largely in your future welfare.

So few people realize that opportunity has no regular seasons—that the time when real chances are greatest is the time when the fewest people are seeking them. But this won't always be so. Wise men are waking up.

This, then, is to notify you that in the real estate columns of the American there is a variety of offerings well worthy of your attention—worthy of your close investigation. And you'll be mighty glad next Spring if you act on this suggestion now.

"DID NOT MEAN SHOT FOR SHEA"

Patrolman Charles W. Miller of Lagrange street station, telling the jury in his manslaughter trial today, how he shot and killed Ralph P. Shea in the doorway at No. 105 Warrenton street on the morning of June 17, last, swore that he never intended to hit anybody, that he did not aim upward, that his revolver was pointed about six inches below his shoulder level, but that a milk bottle crashed at his feet just as he fired, which may, he said, have affected his aim.

Miller declared he thought he was going to be attacked, and fired because he thought he had a right to.

Miller told his story first in direct examination by John P. Feeney. When Assistant District Attorney Webber cross-examined him on the details of the fatal shot, Miller said:

"I saw an object in the dark hallway that seemed to be standing with hand upraised. I thought I was going to be attacked again.

"I did not aim upward. My revolver was pointed about six inches below the level of my shoulder and just at that moment a bottle crashed at my feet. This may have affected my aim.

TELLS OF STRUGGLE.

"I shot because I felt that I had a right to. I did it to prevent an attack on me. My position at the patrol box was dangerous.

"I tried to hit Shea twice with my club, but his close grasp of me prevented it."

Q.—That stick is pretty heavy isn't it? A.—Well, I don't think you'd want to get hit over the head with it.

Miller had drawn his billy in the direct examination and had displayed it to the court and jury.

The court was jammed during Miller's story on the witness stand.

From their seats at the rear of the right hand side of the room, Mrs. Nora T. Shea and Mrs. Ellen Shea McCarthy, mother and sister of the young man Miller shot, gazed at the patrolman.

As Miller came to the stairway details the eyes of the mother and sister overflowed with tears.

Miller left the witness stand once and came over to his counsel to use Mr. Feeney as a figure to show how he clinched with Shea at the beginning of the trouble at the patrol box.

DEMONSTRATES FIGHT.

The defendant took Mr. Feeney's right arm, then grasped his left arm, to demonstrate how he had taken hold of Shea when the latter pulled away from him.

"Then Shea threw his arms about me," said Miller, "and I thought he was going to throw me.

Then Miller had Mr. Feeney take hold of him, while he drew his billy, to show how he had drawn it that night when gripped by Shea.

Proceeding to the first shooting, Miller said:

"I saw both (Shea and Dave Collins) running. I drew my revolver and fired toward the ground to put them in fear and to stop them."

Q.—Did you intend to hit them? A.—No.

Continuing Miller said:

"They ran toward No. 101. After the shot they turned and ran toward No. 105. Shea was fifteen feet ahead of me when he went into No. 105. I went in there to arrest one of them."

Q.—For a felony? A.—Yes.

"What happened in that hallway, for that seems to be the gist of this case?

POSING AROUSES NEWTON

Charges that a number of Newton High School girls have posed—some of them in the nude—for Harry O. Ryder, an Auburndale photographer, stirred Newton parents today. The girls are daughters of well-to-do families.

The charges are the outcome of the $10,000 attachment filed against Ryder in the East Cambridge court by William A. Graham of Waltham. Graham alleged that Ryder had posed Helen Z. Graham, the plaintiff's daughter, in the altogether. The girl is said to under sixteen and is a sophomore in the Waltham High School.

Miss Grace Rady, eighteen, of No. 62 Elm street, Newton, told today of having been asked to pose nude by Ryder. She refused but said she had posed nude to the waist with two other High school girls in an "Oriental study."

Some girls had kept their posing from their parents. They were paid by Ryder as models.

Mrs. William W. Harrington, wife of a well-to-do Newton manufacturer, said today:

"I have just seen a photograph of Louise, my daughter's, pose in low neck. I am going to ask her about it. I never had reason to look into the matter closely until I heard of Mr. Graham's suit. My daughter posed a good deal for the artist a year ago. I am indeed surprised by these revelations."

Miss Rady said:

"I often posed for Mr. Ryder in Oriental scenes. Sometimes I had to wear scant clothing, but I never posed nude.

"Lots of girls posed in the nude for Ryder. I can't tell you their names. It wouldn't be right. The nearest to nude I ever posed was with two girl friends. We were nude to the waist. I never went again to the studio. We used to dress and undress in a room next to the studio. This was fitted with seats and boxes. One day Mr. Ryder asked us to pose in union suits with gauze over us. We refused.

KEEP NAMES SECRET.

The mystery surrounding the names of some of the girl models made some parents anxious. Most of them declared they would interview their daughters as soon as they came home from school this afternoon.

Ryder is a bachelor, living with his sisters on Islington road, Auburndale. He is forty-five years old. He is known as a landscape artist.

Miss Graham, the Waltham girl whose father brought an attachment against Ryder, is credited with being one of the prettiest girls in the Waltham High School. About three weeks ago, it is claimed, her mother discovered a nude picture of the daughter. She is alleged to have said that at one time she posed undraped three hours and received $2 therefor.

Start to Unionize Federal Employes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Organizers employed by the American Federation of Labor have begun efforts to unionize the 300,000 employes of the government under instructions issued by the executive council of the labor organization. There is no legal bar except a provision in the postoffice appropriation bill of 1913, that employes may not affiliate with organizations imposing obligations to join strikes or promising assistance in time of strikes.

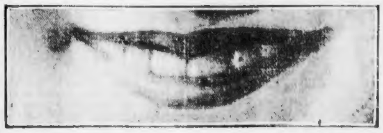
WATCH FOR THIS MOUTH; IT IS ELEANOR ARLIN'S



Eleanor Arlin's mouth was wide, and usually had a little mirthful upward quirk at the outer corner. Her lips are regular, full and gracefully curved. Her teeth are even, and a gold filling in the upper jaw is prominent when she smiles. Watch the mouths of the girls you meet and see if you can identify Eleanor Arlin—for whom the police of the State have been vainly hunting for a week.

HUNGER RIOTS AT TORONTO AND CHICAGO

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 28.—Seven thousand unemployed men stormed City Hall today with banners bearing the inscriptions:

"Give us work, not charity" and "Don't let us starve."

The police stopped the demonstration just in time to prevent a riot.

GUARD CHICAGO'S GHETTO.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—To prevent a repetition of last night's riot of hundreds of unemployed garment workers, squads of police reserves patrolled the Ghetto district all night and were still on duty early today.

Police patrolling Maxwell street last night were fired upon three times, but none was injured. The rioting began after speeches by Morris Bernstein and Harry Wishnewsky, who say they represent the Industrial Workers of the World.

For several days bands of unemployed garment workers have paraded the Ghetto district, begging food from stores. They would then take the food to a hall, where it was equally divided. The warmer weather is said to have thrown thousands of garment workers out of employment by causing a shutdown of the factories.

Agree on Bill For U. S. Radium Plant

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—A government owned and operated radium factory to be supplied with ores from claims to be located under a compromise plan is provided in a bill agreed upon by the House Mines and Mining Committee today which will be reported tomorrow.

East Boston Youth Is Strangely Missing

John Hayes, fifteen, of No. 10 Cottage street, East Boston, has been missing from home since Monday. He was employed by Howe & French, No. 99 Broad street. He wore a red sweater, gray coat and cap and is small in stature, with brown eyes and hair.

Prof. Bosworth's Condition Critical

The firm formerly operated on the Boston Stock Exchange.

Confirm Sullivan for Superior Court

The Governor's Council today confirmed the appointment of Charles S. Sullivan to be justice of the Charlestown District Court. He had been an associate justice. His appointment was held up one week at the request of Senator Brennan of Charlestown, who today made no opposition to the confirmation.

GIRL WAS FORCED TO BEG

Eleanor Arlin, the Brookline girl whose disappearance has baffled the police and her relatives and friends, was today reported as being in Providence last Saturday. Efforts were at once begun to run down this latest clew.

A Providence woman wrote the AMERICAN that a girl resembling Miss Arlin's appearance accosted her for money on a street in Providence Saturday. The girl was well dressed and attractive, so that the woman kept the incident in mind.

Before this letter was received today the "kidnaping clew" reported by friends of Miss Arlin was found baseless. It had been reported that a girl was carried from the South Station in an automobile and whisked away, but the automobile was traced today, and the circumstance was explained.

The letter from Providence reads this:

ASKED FOR MONEY.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 27.
Editor Boston AMERICAN:

I happened to glance at the AMERICAN tonight and saw an account of Eleanor Arlin and the description as given reminded me of a young girl who stopped me last Saturday morning near the corner of Hospital and [illegible] streets. Her height, dress, and hat compare closely with your description and I noted that she had quite nice teeth and one in particular filled with gold.

She said she had lost her pocket-book and asked me for some change—a thing she said she hated to do as she belonged to a respectable family, but she was looking for work and had been unable to find it. She wanted the change to get back to her room.

The girl was of good appearance and I was somewhat puzzled at her stopping me and making the request as she did not appear like a working girl.

BELIEVE ARLIN GIRL WAS TAKEN AWAY IN AUTO

The neighborhood where I met her is quite a lodging house district where cheap rooms can be obtained. I have thought of the incident several times since Saturday, but not being a regular reader of the AMERICAN I did not know of any such girl missing until I happened to buy a paper. The other papers were not printing anything about it.

I trust the girl can be located here. And I am confident she was the girl I saw.

Yours very truly,
(Name signed, but omitted by request.)

Mrs. Edmund A. Rogers of Brookline, a relative of the girl, said today:

NOT ON THE STAGE.

"I have a letter from Mrs. Arlin in Colebrook. She says they are very active there, doing everything they can to get some trace of the girl. She asks me to let her know at once of any news.

"We take no stock in the suggestion that the girl may have gone away to go on the stage. She had no particular ability in that line, and took lessons in voice culture more as a fad than as anything else."

Colebrook, N. H., people still believe Miss Arlin was kidnaped. They take no stock in a suicide theory. Her uncles have offered a $100 reward for evidence leading to her discovery.

They thought, however, that she old New Hampshire home. Frank Wallace, a gateman at the North Station, and Conductor F. N. Keyser of the 12:30 train from Boston for Colebrook, are confident she was a passenger on that train on the day of her disappearance.

The police of Brookline, Worcester, Boylston and Fitchburg are investigating rumors, supported by the testimony of four persons, that she was in Worcester and vicinity last Wednesday.

CLEW FROM DORCHESTER.

F. J. Ely of Dorchester reported to the police that he saw a girl resembling Miss Arlin enter the Commonwealth Trust Company a week ago. She rode in the street car, sitting opposite him, and was reading a book entitled "Plays and Players."

Miss Arlin, it is known, studied elocution and had a desire to go on the stage. Mrs. Anna Ross, a teacher of elocution at the Curry School of Expression, which Miss Arlin attended, has produced a letter written by Miss Arlin in December in which she gave notice she would have to give up her studies and declaring she would like to become an actress.

Habeas Writ in Free Speech Fight

CLAREMONT, N. H., Jan. 28.—A hot legal fight over the case of Edward S. Ago, an A. F. of L. organizer arrested here for speaking on the street, was begun today. CROWDS WATCH HOSPITAL BULB TOUCH $51,000

Crowds stood on Washington street today to see the big thermometer up near the top of the tall building near Winter and Summer streets, mount to the $52,000 mark, more than a fourth of the entire amount needed.

The jump tomorrow will be worth watching, for the abnormally five day had a bracing effect upon everybody and the different teams scored well in every field of effort.

The first of the Italian societies to respond to the call for contributions from the members was the Catholic Italian Civic League of the West End, whose club house is located on South Margin street. This is an organization of Italian boys. In a letter accompanying a contribution of $5, the president, John Palumbo, said that at a special meeting last evening, the members of the society had decided to contribute a week's dues, fifty members, at 10 cents each, to the fund for the New St. Elizabeth's Hospital. Miss Teresa A. Dacey is the director of this organization of young Italians.

HUSTLERS IN NEWTON.

The Sacred Heart parish of Newton is setting a pace for the others. The second report-payment of this energetic community in this campaign brings its total contribution up to $651.05. The teams report that there is more to come, as some districts are still to be heard from.

St. Anthony's-St. Columbkille's team of Brighton made their second report today and the amount was $550. Their total to date is now $1,150. The last sum was the result of several very substantial contributions. Brighton, Brookline and Cambridge are running close for honors in the campaign.

Fog Bound Liners at New York with 4,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The fog blanket, which smothered New York for twenty-four hours cleared enough today to allow the ocean liners held up over night to proceed to their ports. They were the Rotterdam, Kroonland, Laurentic, Minnetonka, Cincinnati and California with more than 4,000 persons on board.

7,000 Homeless in Russian Capital

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 28.—More than 7,000 persons are homeless today in the district about St. Petersburg swept by cyclone and flood. Thousands of workmen are idle through the forced shutdown of manufacturing plants, and railroad and river traffic are at a standstill. The total damage will probably exceed $2,000,000.

South Boston Bank Run Over

The run on the South Boston Savings Bank, which begun last Saturday, was broken today, according to President Tyler of that institution. FRAUD CHARGE AT HEARING ON DOCK PETITION

There was a hot session before the Public Service Commission today when Edmund D. Codman and others appeared to support the petition of the National Dock and Trust Company of East Boston, for the right to use tracks on Lewis Marginal and Webster streets, East Boston, for shunting freight between eleven in the morning and two in the afternoon. There were open charges that the petition for the order contained many fraudulent or "influenced" names.

Representative Thomas A. Niland of East Boston was there in opposition, and kept Mr. Codman on the grill for some little time. Incidentally he became involved in a spirited clash with former Senator Joseph B. Maccabe, editor of the East Boston Argus-Advocate.

When Mr. Codman had explained that the company now has the right to shift freight on these tracks from 11 p. m. till 5 a. m., and had urged the new grant be made, Representative Niland took occasion to inquire:

QUESTIONED BY NILAND.

"Is it not true that your employes are largely non-citizens and non-residents of East Boston, while many East Boston men are unable to find work?" Mr. Codman couldn't say.

"Isn't it true that the great number of those who signed this petition either do business with your company or are financially friendly to it?" Mr. Codman replied to half a dozen men named by Mr. Niland that it was true that they did business with the company.

"The name of Washington Snelling appears on this petition," pursued Mr. Niland. "But he says he didn't sign it. Is that true?" Mr. Codman said he had supposed Mr. Snelling signed.

Then Mr. Niland said flatly:

"I have good reason to believe that a large percentage of the names on this petition are fraudulent, and that an even larger proportion are 'influenced' by business relations with the company. The names of two editors of East Boston papers are signed. Those papers have advertising from the company."

Arose Editor Maccabe: "I wish to protest strongly against that. What advertising we have, the law requires the company to place in local papers. I favor this petition. It is time we encouraged capital."

Mr. Niland said he meant no slur against Editor Maccabe, but simply stated facts. He asked Mr. Codman:

"Do you recognize the unions?"

Mr. Codman said he does not.

CAPITAL IS CHARY.

Q.—Isn't it true there are as many docks idle in East Boston now as before? A.—Yes—because it is almost impossible to interest men with money in a dock proposition. They fear the port directors will build docks and give the use of them to the steamship companies.

Representative John F. Sullivan said he thought there ought to be another hearing, as this was not sufficiently advertised. Chairman Macleod proposed a three months' trial of the new plan—allowing midday switching operations. Representative Niland firmly opposed this, and read from the AMERICAN of several years ago former Mayor Collins' veto of a similar proposition, and the AMERICAN'S editorial in opposition, printed at that time.

MILITANTS STORM ASQUITH AND CABINET

LONDON, Jan. 28.—While the members of the British Cabinet were meeting today in the official residence of Premier Asquith in Downing street, discussing matters of the gravest national importance a party of militant suffragettes attacked the building and tried to force their way into the conference. Policemen attacked the women and a fierce street fight ensued.

News of the impending attack was telephoned to the police and a force of policemen were rushed into Downing street. When the taxicabs stopped in front of the building they were met by policemen. The women gathered themselves into a compact body and tried to fight their way past the bluecoats to the doorway.

After being hurled back the women made another attack, screaming: "Votes for women" and "We want to see Asquith."

After a severe struggle the women were driven away. Some of them were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and resisting police in the discharge of their duty.

The four ringleaders in the attack were arraigned later and sentenced to give bonds to keep the peace or pay $25 fines.

Sugar Trust's Lead Due to Advertising

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The American Sugar Refining Company maintains a lead on certain brands through persistent advertising, according to Joseph Turner, sugar broker. On advertised brands, he said, there was keen competition. Lambert V. B. Cameron, a broker, said at yesterday's anti-trust hearing that he bought less than half of his goods from the trust, and that keen competition existed among all the refineries.

Plot to Assassinate Greek Premier Foiled

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 28.—A plot to assassinate Premier Venizelos of Greece was discovered here today, and a number of Bulgarian students were arrested.

According to the authorities the Bulgarians planned to kill the Greek statesman in revenge for the defeat of Bulgaria by Greek and Servian troops in the second Balkan war. The Premier was warned and provided special guards for himself. Russian secret service agents were also placed at his disposal.

Hot Tea Breaks A Cold—Try This

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.
It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

THAW 'RUSHED' TO MATTEAWAN, BRIEF ASSERTS

liberty for an indefinite period of time is vicious and deprives a person of his liberty without 'due process of law' contrary to the Constitution of the United States. It is not 'due process of law' when a final sentence can be passed committing the body of a citizen to a madhouse for an indefinite period of time without notice or trial.

"The section of the New York Code referred to permits a single person, the presiding justice in any trial of a criminal cause, to exercise his discretion and pass final judgment, if the jury return a verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity, committing the accused to an indefinite period of confinement in a hospital for the criminal insane, without notice, hearing or right of apeal. Such was the procedure in the case of Thaw. Such statutes have been and should be held unconstitutional.

BAIL INVOLVED.

"Another reason why the statute is unconstitutional is, that it applies only to such defendants as are in custody at the time the jury returns its verdict. The man who is of sufficient means to obtain bail and is fortunate enough to do so, cannot be committed under the statute, while the poor fellow who, from lack of means or friends cannot get bail, is in danger of being railroaded into an asylum for the insane, without a chance to be heard in his own defence, there to remain for life or an indefinite period of time. If two persons were jointly indicted and tried for a crime, the maximum penalty for which was six months in jail and both were acquitted on the ground of insanity, one being in custody and the other out on bail, the former could, in the discretion of the court, be committed to confinement for life and the other walk out of the court house a free man. The former would in some respects be in a worse position than a convicted criminal because the statute denies him the privilege of applying for excutive clemency and pardon.

"We have not overlooked the reasoning of Justice Rich, sustaining the validity of Thaw's commitment. The constitutionality of the law was sustained on the ground that a writ of habeas corpus afforded Thaw a method of relief if he could show that he was sane. But this reasoning merely begs the question; it overlooks the illegality of the original commitment. The same reasoning would sustain a statue which would permit a court to sentence and commit a person to jail for larceny without notice, hearing or right of appeal, because if his detention is unlawful under such commitment he can thereafter, by writ of habeas corpus, secure his release, if he can purge himself of the offense.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

WIDE MOVE TO AID CAPITAL'S 'LOST SISTERS'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—From all parts of the United States came assistance today for the 350 women and girls of Washington's "Red Light" district who will be driven from the resorts when President Wilson signs the Kenyon bill passed by Congress.

Branche of the Florence Crittenden home throughout the country have joined in the campaign for the girls' reclamation. Jobs at not less than $8 a week in domestic or industrial situations also have been promised all of the habitues of the restricted district by the National Social Welfare League. Stanley W. Finch, U. S. special commissioner for the suppression of the white slave traffic, is in Washington trying to raise $25,000 for this purpose among the local philanthropists.

Commercial houses, educational institutions, employment agencies and private individuals have also sent offers of aid to the Washington branch of the Florence Crittenden Home, managed by Mrs. Kate Barrett. "Some times," said Mrs. Barrett today, "our good angels come in a guise which we least expect, and, therefore, we may not be quick to recognize them; but let us hope that many girls will recognize this legislation as an opportunity rather than as a misfortune.

"There is an opportunity now for all of these girls to change their lives and to live down in another city the bad name they have made in this. Many of these girls if given an opportunity will undoubtedly reform. It takes such a radical step as this one of Congress to awaken them to an understanding of their own lives.

"The national Florence Crittenden home is in touch with educational and commercial enterprises all over the country in addition to the circles and centre of interest in every city of any size in the United States. It will not only be able to assist any girl who desires to return to her home, but will help her when she is able to earn her own living without assistance."

OF GREAT USE IN BREAKING UP COLDS

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil Is a Thing Long Desired

Every one knows the value of castor oil in breaking up fall and winter colds, but most people have found it too hard to take.

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil does away with this only objection. It is pure, simple castor oil without taste or odor. Nothing is added; nothing good taken out.

In making castor oil tasteless, Spencer Kellogg & Son of Buffalo have discovered a secret that had evaded chemists for 3,000 years.

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil works better than the old evil-tasting, evil-smelling kind. It operates pleasantly, without griping, and does not upset the stomach. Children take it easily.

Do not confuse Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil with prepared, mixed or flavored castor oils. It is the only true, pure, tasteless kind. Sold in all drug stores, not in bulk, but in 25c and 50c sizes. The public is protected by the trade mark—a green castor leaf, bearing the signature—Kellogg's.

Made only by Spencer Kellogg & Sons, Inc., Buffalo, oil refiners.

Keep School Children's Heads Clean

Don't pull their hair out with a fine comb or smear it with poisonous drugs. As a preventive and cure, this simple but sure remedy, which is recommended by physicians and health authorities should be followed by every mother of children. Wet the hair with water and rub thoroughly with Fitzgerald's Hair Soap, a medicated shampoo made especially for this purpose, which can be obtained at any druggist's. This soap will form a thick lather, which should be allowed to remain fifteen minutes or more—in bad cases it should remain over night—rinse off with water; rub dry and comb the hair. Following this course every week will keep the hair perfectly clear of all nits, dandruff germs and dirt, and it will never itch or need fine combing. It will keep it soft and fluffy, prevent its falling out and promote its healthy growth. A 15c. box is sufficient for several months' use. Mothers should save this notice. Do not take any substitute, as Fitzgerald Soap Co., Collingswood, N. J., will send you this soap by mail on receipt of price.

Women Police to Guard New York

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—Twenty women patrolmen will be on post in New York city if a bill introduced by Assemblyman Eisner becomes operative.

Ghost of Vassar Drives Out Tenants

POUGHKEEPSIE, Jan. 28.—The ghost of Matthew Vassar, founder of Vassar College, is said to be haunting an old farmhouse, once owned by him, on the New Hackensack road between Red Oak Mills and New Hackensack.

Within the last four months three families have moved from the place in terror. The present owner, who scoffs at the report, has nevertheless placed "For Sale" signs on the old house, as he cannot rent it.

Strike Leaders in Africa Deported

DURBAN, Natal, Jan. 28.—Labor leaders who conducted the recent strike that terrorized all South Africa and was halted only by martial law, were deported today. President Watson of the Trades Federation, Secretary Bain and several of their colleagues were taken under armed guards aboard the steamer Umgeni just before it sailed for England.

Old Bowers Home Destroyed by Fire

LOWELL, Jan. 28.—Fire drove Mr and Mrs. George Bowers and their two children out in their night clothes when the one-hundred-year-old "Bowers Homestead" at Willow Dale burned to the ground early today. EAT

What You Will—When You Will—Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Digest the Meal Easily and Surely.

Food in itself is harmless. The reason stomach troubles arise is due to faulty digestion brought about by overworking the body or brain, sickness, over eating, late hours, etc.

"Eat? Why, That's My Middle Name Now, but I Always Take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet After Meals to Play Safe."

The only way to correct faulty stomach troubles and digestive mistakes is to do what nature wants. All that nature needs is a little assistance to do this work. This is why doctors tell you to diet. By not eating nature is compelled to aid herself. You do not then overwork her when she is already exhausted.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets go into your stomach just like food. They help digest this food. Then they enrich the blood, and thus when the next meal is eaten the system is better prepared to do its work without assistance or at least less harmfully.

By following this natural habit you will in a short time, correct stomach trouble, do away with indigestion and remove all danger of fatal digestion troubles.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the best tablets made. They are composed of the very best natural ingredients, one grain of one element will digest 3,000 grains of meats, fish, vegetables, grains, soup, etc.

Always take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after meals or just before bed time. By doing this you will be acting wisely and playing safe.

HARVARD TELLS OF EXPERIMENT WITH RADIUM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—The preliminary report of the cancer commission of Harvard University experimenting with radium as a cure for, or alleviation of, cancer has been received here. These authorities take a conservative view of the value of radium, but declare in a statement to Secretary Lane that their experiments are not concluded.

Investigation will be pushed definitely with the hope of determining eventually just what radium and its derivatives can do.

Conclusions reached by the commission are in certain limited cases treatment by radium seems to be curative while in others, not cured by the agent, local results are good and such distressing symptoms as pain, hemorrhage and discharge may be greatly benefited.

Large Collection of Water Color Sketches Reproduced in Natural Colors.

Modern processes of color printing now make it possible to give the lover of art exact representations of great paintings and other objects of art in their original colorings. The publishers of "Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose" have employed these latest color processes in reproducing a splendid collection of water color studies for this new book. The cover bears an inlaid panel in beautiful colors showing the famous Culebra cut. This was made from a painting by Gordon Grant, and gives a decided individuality to the appearance of the large volume.

The AMERICAN presents this book almost free to its readers. In another column of this issue is printed a certificate which explains the entire plan. Look for this certificate and clip it today.

Kiss Waltz Girl Is "Deserted Wife"

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Edward F. Doyle, who left Yale in 1912 before he was graduated, is being anxiously sought by a young woman who was known in the "Kiss Waltz" as "Dot" Whitney, who asserts that she was married to Doyle in Jersey City on April 10 last.

Doyle, who is said to be a member of a wealthy Buffalo family, came to New York last Spring, according to Miss Whitney, with $5,000 his mother had given him. She said she met Doyle in a Broadway restaurant and that two weeks later they motored to Jersey City and were married by a justice of the peace.

Women Must Tell Exact Age to Vote

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Women who desire to register on February 3 in order to be able to vote at the aldermanic primaries must comply with these instructions issued by the Board of Election Commissioners:

"Each woman must state her age in years. A woman's voting age, like a man's, is twenty-one not eighteen years as some suppose."

Anne Morgan Quits Active Club Life

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Miss Anne Morgan, who has served the Colony Club as treasurer seven years, will withdraw from active work in the organization. Friends declare her reason for declining renomination is that she had worked very hard for the club in the past and decided to take a long rest from such activities.

FLORENCE SCHENK'S DEATH BED MESSAGE.

In an article dictated three days before her death, this gay, wilful beauty, who realized the fatal folly of her misspent life when it was too late, sounds a warning to other women who may be tempted as she was.

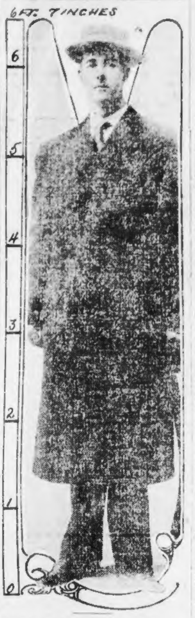
JOHN MALONEY, Boston's new sky-scraping policeman.



MALONEY MAN HIGHEST UP ON POLICE FORCE

Reverting to the days of our childhood—

"Hey, Jimmie, d'you know Boston ain't goin' to have policemen any longer?"

"They ain't—why not, Bill?"

"'Cause they got John Maloney, and he's long enough now."

Sure enough—Maloney, appointed yesterday, brought his six feet, seven inches into the department, and had his baptism of fire by assisting in breaking up a stabbing affray on Sheafe street.

Maloney has had a stage career. That is, he made a hit as a "strong man" in the Catholic Club Minstrel Show one year. He has been a fireman for three years, and received a mark of 100 per cent. in his examination for the force.

He lives now at No. 32 Leonard street—had to move from his former home at No. 24 Granger street because the ceilings were too low for him.

To Hunt for Radium With Divining Rod

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Professor Otto Edler von Graeve, president of the Internationalen Vereins der Rutenganger, the International Divining Rod Association, arrived on the George Washington. The professor brought his rods with him. Some are for locating gold and silver, some for water, some for iron and the latest of all is for radium.

MISS SEARLE IS REAL BELLE OF DEBUTANTES

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

There has been such a delightfully pretty array of debutantes this Winter in Boston that selecting the belle of the season has been the despair of many, but there is a strong impression that winsome Corrine Searle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Putnam Searle of Commonwealth avenue, is bearing away all the season's laurels for beauty. Miss Searle has been given any number of interesting hospitalities this season. Among the latest was the dinner given in her honor at the Chilton Club by Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Bullock of Worcester.

Miss Searle is as charming as she is pretty and her gowns are among the daintiest and most attractive worn by any bud of the year. Miss Searle's season has been cut short, however, by the death of her brother, and now she is in complete retirement.

Miss Eleanor Cotton, who is so much missed in Boston society this winter, is enjoying life to its fullest in Egypt, where she went much earlier in the season with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Hugh Cotton. They are at present in Cairo, where Miss Cotton with her beauty and marked talents is making a decided hit. Mrs. George Lee and her attractive daughter, Miss Marjory Lee, of Brookline, have also been for some time in Cairo, but the Lees are now turning their steps homeward and have gone to Rome as their first stopping place on the homeward journey. In Rome they are with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Little and the latter's daughter, Miss Means.

Important additions to the select fashionable colony of Boston are Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Allan, who have come from their home in Montreal and have leased for the rest of the season a house in Beacon street. Mr. Allan is a relative of Bryce J. Allan, and with Mrs. Allan as her sponsor, the new-coming Mrs. Allan is making an enviable place for herself socially.

* * *

Miss Pauline Croll, who is still in Baltimore, the guest of the Robert Brown Morisons, was given another dinner Monday evening by Mrs. Morison, who after the dinner took her guests on to the fourth german of the Bachelor's Cotillion Club at the Lyric.

* * *

Mrs. Charles A. Munn, who for some time has been quite ill and during the Summer on the North Shore was unable to entertain or join in the Summer festivities in any way, has sufficiently recovered to be able to open her residence. Since November Mrs. Munn has been with her daughter, Mrs. Charles M. Amory, at the Francis I. Amory estate at Beverly Farms.

Oscar Straus Buys a Forty-Acre Estate

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Oscar S. Straus has bought the forty-acre estate of Harry S. Black, at Purchase in the town of Harrison, Westchester County.

He will have as neighbors Oliver Harriman, Donn O. Barber, Louis B. Ralston, William A. Reed and Herbert H. Lehman.

MOTHER, LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take time from play to empty their bowels which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you will have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

MISS CORRINE SEARLE, who is considered belle of the debutante season.

Wilson 'Doesn't Dine Out,' Reply to Hub

The tenacity of J. J. Martin, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, to procure the presence of President Wilson at the banquet of the Exchange in Boston, is deserving of more success. Senator Lodge extended the invitation, and the President replied: "You know I do not dine out."

Bird S. Coler Joins Tango Denunciation

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—"The tango is a form of dance translated from the San Francisco slums, the evil influence of which has spread like the pest through all social classes," declared Bird S. Coler, formerly controller of this city, in speaking at the dinner of the New York alumni of Holy Cross College.

U. S. MISSIONS GIVE MUCH AID TO BULGARIANS

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Writing from Bourgas in a letter just received in London, Pastor K. J. Pachejieff pays a warm tribute to the relief work being done in Bulgaria by the various American church missions. Unfortunately, he points out, this is but a drop in the ocean, and he pleads with the civilized world to drop all opinions as to who are or are not to blame for the present state of affairs and to join in one united effort in humanity's name to save the thousands of lives.

After stating emphatically the need for prompt action, the letter, which is addressed to the London Society of Friends, continues:

"The Bulgarians have been greatly impressed by the energy and generosity with which members of the American missions have come to the support of the sufferers from the war. They have rendered noble and invaluable, indeed, indispensable help, and the Bulgarians will never forget them.

"In Bourgas there are about 15,000 refugees from Thrace. All the authorities can do is to give bread daily to those in the towns, and flour every three weeks to those in the villages.

"Conditions everywhere are pitiful. It is impossible to give any real idea of the terrible destitution by writing. The scenes which I could describe to you are unbelievable unless personally witnessed. It is indeed red ruin."

THE NEW PLAN TO GIVE US JUST WHAT WE PAY FOR.

Dishonest manufacturers to be forced to tell when they put tin in pure silk, sell cotton shoddy for all wool and make shoes with paper soles.

Make This and Try It for Coughs

This Home-Made Remedy has no Equal for Prompt Results.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else you ever used. Usually conquers an ordinary cough inside of 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, spasmodic croup and bronchitis. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and other natural pine elements which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this plan.

Making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful mixture has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

AFTER MEASLES
Whooping-Cough
or Scarlet Fever

is a critical period—weakened throats, delicate bronchial tubes and unsound lungs often follow; sometimes impaired sight or hearing.

But if SCOTT'S EMULSION is taken promptly and regularly after the fever subsides it quickly restores pure blood and strengthens the lungs. Its nourishing force restores appetite, strength and energy.

SCOTT'S EMULSION contains just the elements nature requires to restore sound health; it is totally free from alcohol or harmful drugs. Children relish it.

GOING FAST

Which proves that readers are all eager to get the complete story of

PANAMA AND THE CANAL
IN PICTURE AND PROSE

It's a big $4 book filled from cover to cover with rare pictures, interwoven with a story which at once grasps you and holds your entire interest to the very end.

The Boston American

recognizes the educational advantages offered by this timely work, and for the benefit of its readers presents it for

6 Panama Certificates
Of Consecutive Dates
Printed daily in another column

and only 98c

There's also a smaller volume with only 100 illustrations and no color plates, for six certificates of consecutive dates and only....... 48c

The $4 book is 9x12 inches—more than 20 times as large as this greatly reduced illustration.

MORE THAN 600 ILLUSTRATIONS
AND 16 WATER COLORS

These pictures alone are worth more than the small expense amount named above. They portray scenes far removed from the path of the tourist—the jungle, the strange natives, the wilds of the Isthmus—and the gorgeous colorings of that flowery garden of the tropics.

Mail Orders Filled, as Shown in the Certificate Printed Daily

In order to more quickly facilitate the distribution of the book, readers of the Boston American can secure their copies from any Liggett's Drug Store. These enterprising stores have volunteered their services in this great educational campaign without any profit whatever to themselves.

ENGLISH STAR APPLAUDED IN KIPLING ROLE

J. Forbes-Robertson, who is making his farewell tour of America, turned from Shakespeare last night to one of the more modern dramas that have brought him a fortune rather than artistic triumph alone and gave a finished performance of "The Light That Failed" before an attentive, capacity audience at the Shubert Theatre.

The famous English actor gave a splendid impersonation of Rudyard Kipling's difficult role of blind Dick Heldar, although lacking somewhat the rugged type the author paints. His fine art is in evidence from the prologue where, while intoxicated, he receives the visiting Maisie and shows his self-sacrificing qualities.

It is hard to conceive an actor who would not have made the scene where the war correspondent realizes that he is blind, more melodramatic, but Forbes-Robertson does not need to employ such methods to play with the sympathy of his audiences. He portrays a Dick who is always lovable—sober or drunk—rejoicing in his talent as a painter, or crushed by his affliction.

Gertrude Elliott was as pleasing as ever in the ungracious part of Maisie, who for two acts is cold, hard and willing to sacrifice everything to her ambition as an artist. She was at her best in the last act where in the reconciliation scene she is transformed into a woman who is careless of everything save love, and makes the happy ending to the play possible.

Joan Tuckett, as the treacherous model, Bessie, who repays kindness by destroying the blind painter's masterpiece, also came in for praise as did Grendon Bentley as the staunch friend, Torpenhow, and Adeline Bourne as the red-headed girl.

This afternoon "Hamlet" will be repeated, while the evening attraction will be "Mice and Men."

Tech Man Leads in Race to Volcano

Dr. T. A. Jaggar, the Technology scientist stationed at Hawaii, will be the first expert on volcanoes to get to Japan to observe the phenomena of eruption on Sakura Island. President Maclaurin has communicated with Dr. Jaggar, who is now well on his way to Japan, some thousands of miles ahead of European rivals who are speeding eastward. Dr. Jaggar has a habit of getting on the volcanic ground early. He was one of the first at Mont Pelee, and has made valuable observations on Bogoslof Island, Alaska.

Babson Would "Fire" Corporation Heads

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Efficiency experts should devote more time to developing the efficiency of the heads of the great corporations and let the employes rest once in a while, said Roger W. Babson of Wellesley, Mass., speaking to members of the Efficiency Society at the Biltmore Hotel. If an efficiency engineer is honest, Mr. Babson said, he will recommend in most cases the firing of the president, the employment of a new treasurer and the choosing of a new board of directors.

SELWYNS TO GIVE BOSTON BEST SHOWS

Announcement is made that Selwyn & Co., the new theatrical producing firm of New York, will, within a week, make Boston the home of their amusement activities, for the balance of the present season at least. Selwyn & Co. are the owners of that stirring and popular society melodrama, "Under Cover," now at the Plymouth Theatre, and also the sponsors for that other world-wide success, "Within the Law," which opens for a run at the Majestic Theatre February 16.

The head of this concern is Archie Selwyn, who, as a play-broker, brought fame and fortune to many young authors, especially Americans, by placing their plays with the leading producing managers of this and other countries. To have Selwyn take hold of an unproduced manuscript was equivalent to opening an account in a savings bank, so successful had this young man become at the difficult art of "picking winners."

It was Selwyn who arranged for the first production of "Within the Law" in Chicago. Mr. William A. Brady owned the producing rights to the Bayard Veiller drama, but after a few performances lost faith in its power to please the public. With a shrewder insight into the possibilities of the new piece, Selwyn offered to buy out Brady's interest and the offer was accepted. "Within the Law" was later produced in New York and remained there, playing to capacity for more than 700 performances.

Mr. Selwyn has the same confidence in "Under Cover," and its success at the Plymouth Theatre, which has necessitated the prolongation of its original bookings in this city, is ample proof that his confidence is again well founded.

Consequently, with two such valuable properties to claim his attention, the transferring of his executive staff to Boston from New York is a wise move, as well as a unique and notable one. A representative of the firm is now in this city on the hunt for suitable offices.

London Coal Men Abandon Strike

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The strike of the coal wagon drivers and porters which threatened to bring about a fuel famine, came to an end today when practically all the strikers returned to work under the old conditions. Although about 6,000 striking coal drivers and porters returned, the general labor situation remains serious on account of the lockout of union building trades workmen.

FORD EMPLOYES GET FIRST PAY UNDER BONUS

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The happiest place in New York is the region somewhat northeast of the "other" end of the Queensboro bridge.

For the Ford miracle has been enacted there. The flow of the Ford $10,000,000 a year bonus-wave had at last lapped the shore of the easternmost branch—the Astoria assembling and service plant in Long Island City, and the employes there finally had the real cash in their hands.

Almost five hundred men and women employes got increases in pay.

A dozen unskilled men whose job it is to carry axles, jack them up, screw on hub-caps and so on, in the assembling of Ford cars, received $30, or at the rate of $5 a day, instead of $14.04, the old scale at $2.34 a day.

Before putting the $5 a day minimum wage into effect in the Long Island City works the management appointed a committee which looked into the conduct and responsibilities of the workmen.

Those who got $5 were lifted to $7 and a fraction, and those who earned $6 found that their daily stipend has become more than $8.

A gigantic plant is being constructed next to the present one on Jackson avenue, Long Island City, and by this time next year, Mr. Hirsch said, 1,500 employes will be working there at $5 or more a day.

Word was received that the company has completed plans to establish a branch assembling plant in St. Louis giving employment to 300 workmen.

Raise in Pay for Brooklyn Carmen

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The wages of 500 employes of the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railway Company, recently bought by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, have been raised an average of 10 per cent.

Employes who otherwise would lose their places because of the amalgamation have been transfered to other posts.

Rebels at the Gates of Port au Prince

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti, Jan. 28.—Haitien rebels today captured the outskirts of this city and demanded the surrender of the government officials left in control by the abdication and flight of President Oreste. Negotiations were begun at once. American marines from the cruiser Montana are guarding the American legation. The battleship South Carolina is rushing here from Guantanamo.

The Secret of Success

Genuine Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence.

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfil the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as, like an endless chain system, the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfils almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention the Boston Daily American.

Masher Rescued From Angered Girl

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—"Out in California where I come from," said Miss Christina Steinweiss of Catalpa avenue, Ridgewood, as she landed a punch on the face of a man who said he was Stephen Scannell of No. 2 New York avenue, Brooklyn, "they string up men like you to lampposts," and she squared off for another wallop which would have landed if Patrolman Fitzmaurice had not come to Scannell's rescue.

CHURCH DAY CAMPAIGN OPEN IN SOUTH END

The South End churches opened the campaign last evening for Go-to-Church Day, February 8, in the Clarendon Street Baptist Church. It was the biggest meeting held for the cause in any section of the city.

The Rev. S. H. Roblin, pastor of the First Universalist Church, Columbus avenue, the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church, and the Rev. A. H. Nazarian, pastor of People's Temple, made addresses and urged every one in the South End to wear a Go-to-Church Day button, and speak at least to three persons daily, about the observance of this special day. A "Continuance Committee" to carry on the work of the special day was also appointed.

LARGE SIGNS ON CHURCHES.

Every church in that section will have large signs five feet by four announcing the services of the day.

Special meetings are being held daily in the Tremont Methodist Church, under the supervision of the twenty-five students of the Gordon Training School, who are making personal visits upon all in that locality, urging upon them church going. These students are making their calls two by two, and are meeting with a hearty response from the people.

"Parable sermons" will be used for the next two Sunday evenings at the First Baptist Church, Dorchester, to stir up interest in Go-to-Church Day. These sermons give graphic pictures of some of the weaknesses of humanity. The sermon next Sunday will give a vivid description of a home, with its inmates staying away regularly from church.

GIVE SERMON DRAMA.

The pulpit platform will be so arranged as to represent a home, with fireplace, telephone and every luxury, with one thing lacking which brought shadows, and that was the family in this home had no obligations to Christian influences like the church. It will be an introduction to Go-to-Church Day, and get the non-churchgoers thinking of this important duty. The Rev. Arthur V. Dimock, the pastor, is leading a great movement in this vicinity, to get everyone out to church.

GOVERNOR AND MAYOR INDORSE SUNSHINE CLUB

Governor Walsh today declared that the AMERICAN'S Sunshine Club idea was the one thing needed to make more certain the early return of that full measure of prosperity, the advance signs of which are now so apparent to all.

Mayor Fitzgerald also gave his unqualified indorsement to the AMERICAN'S 1914 Sunshine Club, asserting that a tidal wave of good feeling is just as possible, and carries prosperity in its wake just as surely as the other thing carries depression.

Joseph L. O'Neil, president of the Federal Trust Company, states that prosperity loves the man-with-a-smile. Similar testimony is given in hundreds of other membership applications received from every section of New England, a few of which follow:

SUNSHINE NEEDED.

GOVERNOR WALSH—The AMERICAN'S Sunshine Club idea was just what was needed to make more certain the early return of that full measure of prosperity, the advance signs of which now are so apparent to all.

Sunshine in the home ensures the greatest possible degree of happiness. And what is true of the home applies with equal force to all other human institutions.

"The man who persistently gives prominence to the brighter side of life soon finds all temporary ills relegated to the background.

"Prosperity is here, and our welcome to her can best be expressed in the principles set forth by the 1914 Sunshine Club."

MAYOR FITZGERALD — "Monday showed us how a few people of gloomy minds could create a run on a bank, sound in every particular. That sort of thing, carried far enough, would ruin all the banks in the city.

"A tidal wave of good feeling is just as possible, and carries prosperity in its wake just as surely as the other thing carries depression.

"Good times are coming, but they will come just that much quicker if we help them along by confident optimism."

SUN ALWAYS SHINES.

JOSEPH H. O'NEIL, president Federal Trust Company—"The sun is always shining, somewhere. I am the original founder of Sunshine Club No. 1. A lifelong believer in optimistic movements, I also wish to subscribe to the principles set forth in the 1914 Sunshine Club, which the AMERICAN is booming to such good purpose.

"Business conditions are far better today than they were ev one month ago. They also are sure to improve with the passing of each day. It is impossible that the opposite condition should obtain, when the great mass of people refuse to become discouraged by the passing ills of our national existence.

"The inky clouds pictured in our great business world by the gloomy pessimists of a few months ago, today are found to be only the vapors arising from temporarily befogged minds. The glint of present-day sunshine bursting through the temporary darkness is ample proof of the still better times to come. Even the most timid business man is becoming filled with ardor, an unfailing sign of returning prosperity.

"Keep up the good work. Let gladness replace gloom, on every hand. You can add immeasurably to the sum total of our collective happiness by swelling the number of Sunshine Club members. Prosperity loves the man-with-a-smile."

PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN DIGESTS FOOD WHEN STOMACH CAN'T---IT'S GREAT

Stops Indigestion, Sourness, Gas and Dyspepsia in Five Minutes.

If you feel bloated after eating, and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour, undigested food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you need Pape's Diapepsin to stop food fermentation and indigestion.

It neutralizes excessive acid, stomach poison; absorbs that misery-making gas and stops fermentation, which sours your entire meal and causes Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Billousness, Constipation, Griping, etc. Your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost fifty cents at any pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer in five minutes that Fermentation and Sour Stomach is causing the misery of Indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Nervousness or Gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that relief is waiting at any drug store the moment you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will regulate any out-of-order Stomach within five minutes, and digest promptly without any fuss or discomfort, all of any kind of food you eat.

ECZEMA ON ARMS ITCHED DREADFULLY

Spread Rapidly. Could Not Sleep Because of Itching and Burning. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Eczema Healed.

Buckfield, Me.—"I had eczema and it broke out in pimples on my arms. I would scratch them and they would spread rapidly and itched dreadfully. I could not sleep nights because of the itching and burning. I was a sight. My clothing irritated the breaking out on my arms.

"I tried remedies but they did not seem to do any good so I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The only relief I could get was to wash with Cuticura Soap and apply the Cuticura Ointment. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and my eczema is all healed." (Signed) Mrs. Myrtle B. Pearl, July 1, 1913.

A generation of mothers has found no soap so well suited for cleansing and purifying the skin and hair of infants and children as Cuticura Soap. Its absolute purity and refreshing fragrance alone are enough to recommend it above ordinary skin soaps, but there are added to these qualities delicate yet effective emollient properties, derived from Cuticura Ointment, which render it most valuable in overcoming a tendency to distressing eruptions and promoting a normal condition of skin and hair health. Cuticura Soap (25c.) and Cuticura Ointment (50c.) sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

☞ Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

A Human Churn

"WHEN the food reaches the stomach it is subjected to a peculiar churning movement by the muscular walls of the stomach"—(See Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, page 45). In the liver, kidneys and skin, the blood is purified of its waste materials—these organs act as human filters, leaving the blood pure and clear—unless liver, digestive tract and kidneys are clogged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

is a stomach, liver and kidney tonic—by assisting the stomach to assimilate, the liver to filter, the kidneys to act—the poisons are removed, the red blood corpuscles are increased and one feels light, fresh and active instead of logy, dull and heavy. The "Discovery" stimulates the stomach, increases action of heart and arteries and is a most satisfactory alterative in blood-taint of any character. The refreshing influence of this extract of native medicinal plants has been favorably known for over forty years. Everywhere some neighbor can tell you of the good it has done.

Sold by all medicine dealers in liquid or tablet form; or send 50 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and a trial box will be mailed you.

"It Makes Things Hum"—

"What I like about Mayo's is you can smoke it all day long and get real pleasure out of it. With me, it steadies me down and makes things hum.

"I can't get the satisfying taste out of other tobaccos that I get from Mayo's—so I recommend Mayo's every time."

MAJOR LEAGUE BALL PLAYERS HAVE PROFITED, EVEN THOUGH THE FEDERALS MAKE GOOD OR NOT

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

FAST WELTERWEIGHTS TO MEET IN BOUT BEFORE MEMBERS OF MARIEVILLE CLUB TONIGHT

FEDERALS BOOM BOOSTED PAY OF BIG LEAGUERS

By RILEY.

WHETHER the Federal League makes good or not, it has had the effect of boosting the salaries of many players in organized baseball to a size in proportion to what they are producing at the gate, and saving many other players reductions in pay which the reserve clause and lack of competition made possible to inflict. It has [illegible] the public to [illegible] cities of a "run for their money" and disclosed to the same public one of the reasons why their respective teams are [illegible] in the second division and play indifferent baseball.

WHILE we hear much [illegible] from the followers of the organization magnates regarding the "high salaries paid to players because of organized baseball," it is nevertheless a fact that big league players as a rule, are paid below what they have a right to expect in return for the money they bring in at the gate or what they would bring in at the gate if the owners and managers were competent or were not stupidly engaged in "milking the cow" or "killing the goose that lays the golden egg." Several magnates in the big leagues have, as a rule, been engaged recently in this easy, delightful and reactionary occupation. Wherefore they have waxed fat without expenditure of gray matter and there has been a corresponding failure to keep big league baseball plants, as a whole, up to the standard which the public has a right to expect.

WE see many magnates and their press agents pointing to what organized baseball has done for so-and-so. "It took him out of a mine where he was making $2 a day and pays him $2,000 a year for 150 games," they say, for instance. Yet grand opera takes the Carusos, the Constantinos and their like out of the blacksmith shops, the barber shops and the streets and pays them $500, $1,000 and even $2,000 or more a night. The railroad takes the Hills, the Mellens, the Elliotts and their like out of offices, the shops and other humble stations and gives them $50,000 and $100,000 a year jobs. Steel takes the Carnegies out of the telegraph stations and gives them millions. Business everywhere picks out the good man from the bad and pays them for the goods they deliver. It pays for what it gets. Baseball has not been doing it. For every "miner at $2 a day who gets $2,000 a year in baseball" remember the thousands of ball players [illegible] get out of the minors.

THERE is little of consequence in a baseball plant except the players and the manager. A good team will draw on a poor lot. The investment required is insignificant. Any big league club can rent a suitable park for $20,000 a year or thereabouts. No big league club is required to carry more than 25 men. If they paid them all $3,000 a year, the whole salary list would amount to a measly $75,000 a year. It is an absolute fact that more big league teams pay less than $75,000 a year salaries than pay more than that sum. And this year, with the excuse that business might be a bit dull, the magnates were preparing for a universal "cut."

WHY did baseball business show signs of becoming "dull" (if it did, which we don't believe)? Principally because many of the magnates—those whom the public had a right to rely upon to sustain the [illegible] enterprise—were [illegible] expanding and, with no competition to fear, [illegible] an era of "milking the cow."

* * *

COMPARE the game of big league baseball with the theatre. More baseball players in the major league receive less than $3,000 a year than those who are paid more than that sum. A player has to have a lot of experience or must shine as a star to get $3,000 or more. With the same relative ability, and the the same relative power as a drawing card, he would receive much more as an actor. The Weber show, which appeared recently in Boston, pays $5,000 or more a week in salaries as long as the show runs, which is figured at about forty weeks a year. It is a fair example. It plays in few theatres that rent for as little as the average big league baseball park. The highest priced baseball club we happen to know about just now pays about $3,500 or $3,600 a week salaries for twenty-six weeks and uses a park whose rental price is below that of almost every theatre in Boston—far below the best of them. SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

By A. H. C. Mitchell

"DOC" GESSLER, manager of the Pittsburgh Federal League, complains that he could have corraled quite a number of major league players but for the wives of said players who objected to their husbands taking a chance with the "outlaws."

Many a man is responsible for his financial success in life to his wife. It would seem that ball players are no exception to the rule.

DOUBTLESS many ambitious players would yield to the blandishments of the promoters and jump to the "Feds" in a minute if they were not restrained by their far-seeing spouses. The female of the baseball species believes that a sure thing in the way of salary as long as the male of the species is able to make good is far better than a little advance money and a three-year contract with the "Feds" at a slight advance over what organized baseball offers.

THE risk the player takes in jumping to the "Feds" is that while he may get a bunch of advance money and be temporarily benefited he is likely to be high and dry as the baseball [illegible] before the season is fairly started.

If the Federal League "busts" the player will, no doubt, have to go to law to collect on his contract, and of course, while he is fighting the case he will draw no money from baseball.

The major leagues will be mighty slow in allowing the jumpers to return to organized ball. The jumpers will not be publicly blacklisted, but there will probably be a "gentleman's agreement" by which all hands will ignore the jumpers when they desire to return to the fold.

THE Federals have had to put the money in the bank subject to the order of the players in the cases of Tinker and Knabe and maybe one or two other players they have secured, but the rank and file of ball players who sign with the "outlaws" will have nothing to fall back on except their contracts if the "Feds" should "bust." Wives of ball players see this if their contracts do not see it. Hence, as "Doc" Gessler says, he is having trouble in landing the men he wants for his team.

THE long-suffering baseball public of St. Louis is eager to see the Federals come through with a big league club. In fact the advent of the "outlaws," it believes, will do more good in that town than in any other city from the standpoint of the public.

It is true that three teams cannot live there and one will probably have to get from under provided the "Feds" gain a foothold and play through a season. But in the meantime competition will have forced all three clubs to get busy and organize a decent squad of players. The weakling may be crowded out in the shuffle.

STORIES in the Chicago newspapers are to the effect that Joe Tinker has ceased to smile; that his face wears a worried look and that he is doing very little talking these days. This may mean that Joe is discouraged over the Federal League outlook or that he is so busy that he doesn't have time to smile, look pleasant or talk.

If it is true that the "Feds" have captured Falkenburg, Blanding and Kahler, the Cleveland pitchers, Tinker may be induced to smile again.

President Ebbets of the Brooklyn club continues to confidently predict that Tinker will be in a Brooklyn uniform when the National League season of 1914 starts, but when asked his reasons for this belief he only smiles and looks wise.

IT is said that if the "Feds" get playing ball they will abolish the foul-strike rule and will also have their own set of playing rules.

Jersey City Five Seeks Games Here

The athletic committee of Branch 172, Knights of St. George, of Jersey City, has organized a fast traveling basketball team, which consists of: Acker, Ernst, forwards; Malone, Haussmann, centres, and Williams, Healy, guards. These men are all experienced players, who play under the name of the famous Knickerbocker Five of New York, known all over the United States. They would like to book a game with all teams in Boston and vicinity offering a suitable guarantee. Address Frederick A. Haussmann, No. 712 Dodd street, West Hoboken, N. J.

Boxing Chatter

JIM BUCKLEY, manager of "Gunboat" Smith, announces that he will match the gunner with Georges Carpentier, the sensational twenty-year-old French heavyweight, if he is guaranteed $15,000. Buckley evidently believes that the French promoters are generous philanthropists and are desirous of getting rid of their extra money with the least possible effort.

CARPENTIER, by the way, will soon be forced to shoulder a musket in the French army. Therefore he will have to retire from the ring for two unwilling years. Carpentier's army service will cost him about $100,000. He would be able to make this much money easily if he were to remain in active competition in the ring.

MIKE GLOVER, the South Boston welterweight who was recently outpointed by Jack Britton, is seeking another bout with Danny Morgan's protege. Glover asserts that he is entitled to another tussle with Britton as he has already one victory to his credit over the Chicago phantom.

TONY PALAZOLO, the mascot of many a star New England boxer, is spending his time in New Haven where he is in charge of a newsstand. Tony has a personal acquaintance with more ring men than the average youth. Many of the best boxers in New England felt assured of winning their bouts when Tony consented to be near their corner during the battle.

GEORGE TUOHEY, the man who has put Boston on the wrestling map, aided and abetted by Mrs. Tuohey, is able to get around again with the aid of crutches. "Little George," however, will probably be unable to leave his home in Winthrop for five or six more weeks.

JOE BORRELL, the Philadelphia middleweight who has been showing so well this Winter, will sail for Europe on February 4. Borrell has been promised several star matches on the other side of the big pond. Borrell will exchange blows with Jack Reck at the Nonpareil A. C. in Philadelphia Friday night.

JOHNNY DUNDEE may not go to England in order to fight "Kid" Lewis for a $2,500 guarantee after all. Scotty Montieth, Dundee's manager, declared today that there will not be any Dundee-Lewis bout unless the English promoters agree to send transportation for four. The hitch has been caused by Mrs. Montieth and Mrs. Dundee deciding that they would like to make a trip to Europe in order to view the sights of the Old World.

Mahan, Alexander [illegible], K. C. [illegible], Roderick Tower. Relay team (long distance), Harvard vs. Yale, Henry MacLure, William J. Bingham, Eric P. Stone, A. J. deGozzaldi, F. H. Blackman.

Tyler Dissatisfied With Braves' Terms

Following a conference at Lowell with Mordecai Brown, manager of the Chicago Federal League club, George Tyler, the Braves' star southpaw pitcher, announced today that he would say definitely within a few days whether or not he intends to join the Federal League. Tyler admitted that he was dissatisfied with the terms offered him by the Braves for next season.

Cubs Swing Three Stars Into Line

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—John Evers, manager of the Chicago National club, is on his way home from Tampa, with the signed contracts of Tom Leach, George Pierce and Arthur Phelan, according to word received at the club headquarters. Phelan and Pierce have signed contracts for three years and Leach for one, according to President Murphy.

"Feds" Dickering with Sox Recruit

PORTSMOUTH, Va., Jan. 28.—"Swat" Mundy, the recruit first baseman of the Red Sox, stated today that he has received an offer from the Indianapolis Federals, and that he is seriously thinking of accepting the proposition. The price, he says, is considerably more than he gets from Boston.

Tigers' Wrestling Dates.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 28.—The Princeton wrestling schedule as announced today by J. L. D. Painter, manager of the team, is as follows:

Feb. 28, Cornell at Princeton (afternoon); March 7, Pennsylvania at Princeton; March 14, Columbia at Princeton; March 20, Yale at New Haven; March 27 and 28, Intercollegiates at Pennsylvania.

HOCKEY NEWS AND NOTES

George A. Hubbard has joined the ranks of the Irish-American A. C. hockey team and will play left wing against the Pilgrim A. A. tomorrow evening. "Hubby" was one of the stars of the Rindge Manual seven in 1910 and a teammate of Jack Fritz. That year the Rindge team lost but one game during the season.

Bob Telford has been appointed coach of the Irish-American seven and in the last two practice sessions at the Arena the result of his coaching was much in evidence. Telford knows a great deal about the Canadian game, and his proteges should show improvement tomorrow night.

The second game of the series between the Irish-Americans and the Pilgrim A. A. is attracting much attention, and a big house is assured. Great efforts are being made to have the game cleanly played, and it is not expected that any outbreaks similar to those which occurred in the first game will take place.

Competent officials can make the game clean, and for tomorrow night the best men obtainable should be secured to handle it. Coach Ralph Winsor of Harvard and the B. A. A. and Foster are as good if not the best versed men on hockey in this city, and it was a good move to select them to officiate.

Irving Small will be moved back to his regular position at centre tomorrow night. Small played centre several years ago and was one of the best at that position, but this season he has been forced to fill in at other positions. It is not known as yet whether Davenport will be in the game against the Pilgrims.

The Ottawa team now has a clean lead in the race for the championship, and on their recent form are the ones to be reckoned with for the title. The team has won seven and lost two games this season.

The Wanderers hockey team of the National Hockey Association has been playing bad hockey for the past two weeks and has finally slipped down in the league standing till now the Montreal team is in a tie with the Ontarios for the cellar position. In the last game the Canadians won by the score of 9 to 1, and during the greater part of the second half the winners had a team of new men in for a tryout.

The Ontarios showed a marked reversal of form in the game against Quebec. From start to finish Jimmy Murphy's tail-enders displayed brilliant hockey, and their victory was the surprise of the season.

'Skeets' Canterbury Gives Up Hockey

"Skeets" Canterbury, goal tend of the B. A. A. hockey team, has decided to give up the game for good. Canterbury has taken active part in the Canadian sport for the past fifteen years, and is one of the most popular players on the ice today. His place on the Unicorn seven will be filled by O. M. Chadwick, a former Harvard star.

NAP PITCHERS SAY THEY HAVE NOT JUMPED

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 28.—Charles Somers, owner of the Cleveland American League baseball club, is today fully convinced that his three star right-hand pitchers, Fred Falkenberg, George Kahler and Fred Blanding, have signed contracts to play with the Federal League. He openly admitted it, and says that he has learned from a reliable source that Falkenberg is to go to Indianapolis, Kahler to Pittsburgh and Blanding to Buffalo.

On the other hand, Kahler and Falkenberg say they have not joined the Federals, but admit they are giving the offer serious consideration. Blanding has not been heard from on the subject.

"I'm on the fence," said Falkenberg, when asked to confirm a report from Chicago that he had signed a three-year contract with the Federal League at $7,000 a year and received a certified check for $5,000 to bind the bargain.

"This is a matter of business with me," continued the tall hurdler. "I will make no statement until I have made up my mind.

"I owe the Cleveland ball club nothing. After I had won ten straight games last season waivers were asked on me and several other players. It was an insult I have never forgotten. I had never pitched better ball in my life and was simply flabbergasted when I learned that my name had be included in a request for waivers."

"They mean business, too," intercepted Kahler. "They don't hand out hot air. When they talk terms they place a certified check in your hands. Like Falkenberg, I am still on the fence."

Just what action Somers proposes to take in the matter is not known. It is said that he may use money to entice the pitchers to come back, while from other corners it was heard that he would resort to court methods. When the question was put to Somers, he said:

"I cannot answer that. The league will act and not the individual clubs when the time comes, but there has been no intimation of what policy will be adopted."

School Notes

Allen School expects to have a strong baseball team this Spring. Captain Harold Moore, Flynn, M. Moore and Campbell are veterans available. Manager Alford Gustafson has arranged the following schedule:

April 11, Stoneham High at West Newton; April 15, High School of Commerce at West Newton; April 18, Thayer (pending); April 20, Worcester Classical High at West Newton; April 25, Worcester South High at West Newton; April 29, Tufts 2d.

May 2, open; May 6, St. George's at Newport; May 9, Huntington School at West Newton; May 13, open; May 16, Wentworth Institute (pending); May 23, [illegible] (pending); May 27, Milton Academy at Milton; May 30, Middlesex at Concord.

Browne & Nichols will again take up rowing and a crew will be placed on the river this year after an absence of five years. Candidates will report in a few weeks and start work indoors on the machines. The school is a member of the Schoolboy Rowing Association. The Browne & Nichols students who have signified their intention of trying for the crew are William Richardson, John Gundry, John Howe, Norman Aldrich, Robert Schuder, Thomas Cabot, Clayton French and Rudolph Bebe.

Dorchester High and Boston College High will not clash in a dual set of track games this year owing to a disagreement. Coach Reilly was willing to compromise and hold a meet in the Dorchester gymnasium on alternate years, but the Boston College boys desire only to meet Dorchester in their home gymnasium.

Cahill has been selected to succeed Bennett Murray as captain of the Boston Latin hockey team. Murray will be unable to play anywhere this year because of study conditions.

The English high school hockey players will leave on the 1:15 train today for Exeter, N. H. to play the seven of the Academy. The result of this game will be watched for with interest by all Boston schoolboys. English High is represented by one of the best hockey teams in its history and the individual work of the boys has attracted attention.

"Mickey" Roache, the English High rover, is one of the best schoolboy hockey players this season and his playing alone will make the Exonians hustle.

The men picked to represent Lynn English High in the dual meet against Malden High on Friday evening are as follows: 300-yard run, Vose and Bodwell; 600-yard run, Callahan, Long and McDonald; 1,000-yard run, Long, Crockett and Cushing; shot put, Windsor, Tucker, Berry and Vose; 220-yard dash, Vose, Clark, Callahan, Gage and O'Callaghan; high jump, Vose, Hayes and Foster; potato race, Ward, Clark, Vose and Chapman; relay race, Vose, Callahan, Gage, Crockett and Captain Clark.

The first game of the series to decide the hockey championship of the city will be played this afternoon at the Arena, Mechanic Arts opposing Boston Latin. The game will start at 3:30. A hard battle is expected as both teams want a good start in the league series.

Hendrix with Kansas City Federal Club

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 28.—Claude Hendrix, who pitched for the Pittsburgh National League baseball club last season, will wear a Kansas City Federal League uniform next year, according to an announcement by the club.

"Birdie" Cree Gets Big Offer.

SUNBURY, Pa., Jan. 28.—"Birdie" Cree, the New York American outfielder, said at his home here today that the manager of the Pittsburgh Federal League baseball team has offered him $5,000 a year for three years and has promised to deposit half of that amount if he signs a three-year contract. Cree has not given his decision.

EVERETT NINE HOPES TO WIN SUBURBAN FLAG

Faculty Manager S. E. Marks of the Everett High School today announced the schedule for the baseball team, which indicates that the Suburban League champions have a busy season ahead.

Most of last year's veterans have graduated and with but few exceptions the team will be made up of recruits. The veterans are Captain Hunt, Albert Pierrotti, Joe Brickley, Sidney Jones and Joe Driscoll.

Although the outlook is anything but bright, the Everett boys entertain strong hopes of again capturing the title.

The schedule follows:

April 4, Lynn English High at Everett; April 11, High School of Commerce at Everett; April 18, Cambridge High and Latin at Cambridge; *April 20, Medford High at Medford (p. m.); *April 22, Somerville H. S. at Everett; *April 25, Malden High at Malden; *April 29, Melrose H. S. at Everett; May 2, Weymouth High at Everett; *May 6, Malden High at Everett; *May 9, Medford High at Everett; May 13, Chelsea High at Everett; *May 16, Somerville High at Somerville; *May 20, Melrose High at Melrose; *May 23, Melrose High at Everett; May 27, Mechanic Arts High at Everett; *May 30, Malden High at Malden; *June 3, Medford High at Medford; *June 6, Somerville High at Everett; *June 10, Somerville High at Somerville; June 13, Manchester (N. H.) High at Everett; *June 17, Malden High at Malden (p. m.); *June 20, Melrose High at Melrose; *June 24, Medford High at Medford.

*Suburban League.

Manchester High to Play Melrose Team

One of the features of the Melrose High school baseball schedule announced today is the listing of Manchester High among its many opponents. The New Hampshire schoolboys will play at Pine Banks park, Memorial Day afternoon. The schedule is as follows:

April 4, Huntington School at Melrose; 8, Ringe at Melrose; 11, Chelsea at Melrose; 15, Stoneham at Melrose; 18, Alumni; 20, Malden at Melrose (A. M.); 22, Medford at Medford; 25, Boston College High at Melrose; 29, Everett at Everett.

May 2, Somerville at Melrose; 6, Medford at Melrose; 9, open; 13, Somerville at Somerville; 16, Malden at Malden; 20, Everett at Melrose; 23, Everett at Everett; 25, Medford at Medford; 30, Manchester (N. H.) High at Melrose (P. M.)

June 3, Somerville at Melrose; 6, Malden at Melrose; 10, Malden at Malden; 13, Medford at Melrose; 17, Somerville at Somerville; 20, Everett at Everett.

COBB TELLS WHAT IT MEANS TO BE ONE OF THE BEST BATTERS BASEBALL HAS EVER KNOWN

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

BUSY SEASON MAPPED OUT FOR EVERETT HIGH SCHOOL NINE: BOYS HOPE TO CAPTURE TITLE

FLEMMING AND LOUGHREY MEET IN GO TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

FRANK LOUGHREY, one of Philadelphia's classiest welterweights, will clash with "Wild Bill" Flemming of Oldtown, Me., in a fifteen-round bout before the Marieville A. C. in Rhode Island tonight. Loughrey is a great drawing "card" in Rhode Island, as he has made good showings in all of his bouts in that State.

The Quaker is a typical two-handed fighter and his aggressive tactics while within the hemp ropes have won for him many admirers. Loughrey's last battle in Rhode Island was with Joe Chick of Gloucester whom he defeated after fifteen rounds of hurricane fighting.

Flemming believes he will be able to vanquish Loughrey. The Maine welterweight has put up some rugged battles in the Pine Tree State and in New York, and although Loughrey will enter the ring a favorite in the betting, he will have to fight at a merry pace in order to gain the referee's verdict.

Joe Egan, the skilful South Boston 135-pound boxer, will exchange blows with a young man by the name of Miller in the semi-final "go" of ten sessions. Bert Stanley of Oshkosh, Wis., was scheduled to box Egan but his mother died suddenly and he has been forced to call off the tussle. Miller is one of Loughrey's sparring partners and is said to be a good performer.

THREE six-round preliminary tussles have been arranged for the opening boxing show of the North Shore Club, which will be staged in Salem next Monday night. The preliminary "card" is as follows: Patsy Greene of Cambridge vs. Joe McGovern of Salem, bantamweight class; [illegible] Morris of Cambridge vs. Tommy McFarland of Boston, featherweight class, and Dave Powers of Malden vs. Billy Burke of Lynn, welterweight class.

George Alger, who will exchange blows with Freddy Duffy of Jamaica Plain in the feature whirl of twelve rounds, is training at George Byer's gymnasium in the West End. Alger boxed three fast rounds today with Matty Baldwin and showed up very well. The Cambridge lightweight expects to win from Duffy Monday.

SPEAKING of Baldwin reminds me that Matty will soon be ready to take his old place within the hemp ropes. The Bunker Hill boy has been obliged to take things easy for several weeks on account of two broken ribs. When Baldwin enters the ring again, he asserts that he will take on the New England lightweights one after the other. He claims that Eddie Murphy is the only boxer near his weight who is capable of making him extend himself. Baldwin also stated that he would be able to vanquish Murphy if the latter would make 133 pounds.

JOE CHICK, the rugged Gloucester welterweight, is in big demand by New England boxing promoters. [illegible] Mooney tried to secure Chick to clash with some good 145-pound boxer in Salem next Monday night, but Eddie Mack, Chick's manager, was unable to accept the date as he has the Gloucester tornado signed to box before the Marieville A. C. in Rhode Island a week from tonight. "Young" Tommy Loughrey will probably be Chick's opponent. Mack is wise enough to realize that Chick might be injured if he should fight in Salem next Monday night, which would make it impossible for him to show in Marieville on Wednesday evening. If other managers of boxers would have as much consideration for promoters as Mack had in this case there would be less eleventh hour substitutions and the "fans" would not be disappointed as often as they now are by one of the main bout principals failing to put in an appearance.

THERE is not anything which hurts the boxing game any more than changes in the original "card." In nine cases out of every ten the boxer who is secured as a substitute is a dub and only enters the ring in order to get the loser's end of the purse. There are few real good boxers who will consent to take the place of a glove wielder who has met with some injury or has been attacked with "cold feet" a day or two before a bout. If you will take the trouble to investigate the matter, you will discover that the majority of substitute boxers have taken a short nap on the canvas after a few rounds of alleged fighting.

Maggie Teyte and Ouimet Team at Golf

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 28.—National Amateur Golf Champion Francis Ouimet is showing championship form again. In a four-ball match with Donald J. Ross as a partner, he recorded 77, the pair defeating professionals Alex Ross and Jack Jolly by 2 up. Ouimet still finds running up approaches and putting perplexing, but his long game is well nigh perfect. Today he will play a mixed foursome in which Maggie Teyte will be his partner. Tewksbury plays with Miss Eleanor Abbe of the Pinehurst [illegible] Club.

THIS is the third installment of a series of baseball stories that Tyrus Raymond Cobb, probably the greatest ball player of all time, has written for the Boston American. In this series Cobb will show what it means to be one of the greatest batters the national sport ever has known, and in the telling will relate a few amusing and interesting incidents that have come under his notice.

FEW fans are acquainted with Joe Jackson's personal history and the story of how he broke into the big league. He was born in Greenville, S. C., which is not very far from my home, where he worked in the cotton mills, a business that does not permit much opportunity for obtaining an education.

"Shoeless Joe" began playing ball on the side, however, and built up such a reputation as a sticker that Connie Mack, whose ears are sensitive when some fellow is drilling out long hits in the bushes, heard about him and brought him up to the Athletics. Connie was stuck on the solid style in which Jackson stung the ball, and when he found that Joe had overlooked getting an education, he offered to provide it for him.

Joe had always been used to the cotton mills and the life in the South, and he grew homesick after being with the Athletics for a short time, becoming restless, too, because he did not get a chance to work regularly. He complained to Mack about this.

Quits Mackmen to Go Back to Greenville.

"Wait," said Connie, who likes to teach all his ball players to be patient like himself. "This is your big chance."

"But I want to play every day or else go back South," answered Joe.

"But you must get big league habits first," replied the careful Connie.

It was not much more than a week after this that the Athletics were playing a series in Washington. One day Jackson was missed from the bench.

"Has anybody seen Joe Jackson? Is he sick?" asked Connie.

"I was with him last night down near the Union Station, and he said he was going to buy a newspaper," spoke up a player who is now hopelessly buried in the minors. "I trailed along, but, instead of buying a newspaper, he went to the ticket booth and got a ticket to Greenville. The last I saw of him he was going on board a train."

"That's right. Yesterday was pay day," remarked Connie.

Jackson evidently estimated Washington to be the nearest point to Greenville that he would touch on the big league circuit, and decided to jump the club there and get back home. He is one of the few players that have declared themselves out of the big league. On the following day Mack sent this telegram to Greenville:

Not Keen for Big League Company.

"Join the club in Philadelphia at once if you don't want to be suspended."

Back came the reply, collect:

"Don't want to stay in the big league. Am tired of it."

Mack did not despair. He brought Jackson up once more through a special envoy, and this time he induced the promising and hard-hitting recruit to include his wife in the party. But again Jackson longed for the cotton mill country, and he soon jumped the team to play in the South Atlantic League, which he led as a hitter.

He could bat just as well then as he can now, or practically as well. Cleveland grabbed the slugger after Mack had relinquished all claim to him as hopeless, and Joe has stuck with the Naps. He is a great hitter, one of the greatest in the game.

But still I believe Jackson would have been a bigger success under Mack than he is today, because the wise Philadelphia leader has the knack of developing hitters and getting the best out of a man there is in him, and more. He would have taught Jackson more science in batting. That would have helped him immensely.

Baker More Dangerous; Knows How to Hit Right.

I consider Baker to be more dangerous than Jackson, for instance, because Baker will hit right. He has been instructed how to do this by Mack. With the shortstop covering to get a man at second, Baker will hit right, that is, he will try to drill the ball through the hole left in the infield, and almost any kind of a batted ball will get by if properly aimed at the cavity.

Whereas, with the shortstop covering on the hit and run, Jackson goes after the ball just the same as he does with the bases clear. In other words, he is not a scientific hitter, and the work of a man like Baker is more valuable to a team.

Jackson is what we call a streak hitter. He bats like a fiend for a time and then his work drops off. For instance, he did most of his hitting at home last Summer and very little on the road. It is difficult for him to get out of a slump. He doesn't know how and just swings harder at the ball, which usually results in a longer slump.

Extra base hits often make a batter slump and streaky in his work, and Jackson gets many of these. This may sound funny to the reader, but I know long slams have this effect on my work. If I think I am just meeting the ball and get a home run, I am surprised.

"I didn't hit that one hard," I'll say to myself. "The next time I'll take a healthy swing at it and show them how far I can drive it."

This hard swing tangles up the form and gets the eye off the ball. I have seen the last three world's series as a spectator, and I believe it was the state of mind to which I referred above and nothing else that was responsible for the Giants' poor showing at the bat. Men who have seen them play throughout the season tell me that the New York battern are naturally chop hitters, as are most of those in baseball nowadays. But in the world's series the Giants were all taking terrific swings at the ball which undoubtedly threw them into the slump that attacked the team in the last three starts in the big series.

(Copyright, 1914, by the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

The next installment of the Ty Cobb series of baseball stories will be printed Saturday in all editions of the Boston AMERICAN.

Kiviat Will Prove Charges Untrue

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Abel Kiviat has written to the A. A. U. registration committee saying he was not guilty of faking the race with Kolehmainen on Saturday night, and denied that it was a "frameup." He claimed that he was ill and that he would prove it.

Cambridge H. and L. Nine Has High Hopes

Coach Dan O'Flaherty of the Cambridge High and Latin School baseball team has many promising youngsters whom he expects to develop into good ball players this season, to take the places of those graduated. Captain Paul Sibert, pitcher; Sandiford, first baseman; O'Brien, second baseman; Procter, fielder, and Harvaugh, catcher, are the veterans who remain. The schedule:

April 8, Lowell Textile at Lowell; April [illegible], Brighton at Cambridge; April [illegible], Boston [illegible] High at Cambridge; April 15, Somerville High at Somerville; April 18, Everett High at Everett; April 20, [illegible] at [illegible], pending; April 25, Manchester High at Manchester, N. H.; April 29, Boston Latin at Cambridge.

Owen Moran Retires From Boxing Game

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Following his defeat by Joe Shugrue of Jersey City, Owen Moran, former featherweight champion of England, today announced his retirement from the ring.

"I've been fighting for fourteen years and I guess I will have to give way to the young fellows now," said Moran. "I did my best last night. I was up against a younger, tougher man. It would have been foolish to keep on fighting, for I was whipped in the seventh round and knew it."

Sapper O'Neil, a lightweight, also of England, met his first defeat in this country in the semi-final, being badly whipped by Johnny Dundee. Both O'Neil's eyes were blackened, one ear was cauliflowered and his lips and nose were cut.

Hopkins Commodore of Mosquito Y. C.

Edward L. Hopkins was re-elected commodore of the Mosquito Yacht Club of South Boston at a meeting of its members. Other officers chosen were: Patrick H. Raftery, vice-commodore; Daniel J. Donovan, secretary; Cornelius J. Driscoll, treasurer; James H. White, Walter J. Croft and John F. Leamey trustees.

Count Fifty! No Sore, Lame Back

Rub Backache Away With a Small Trial Bottle of "St. Jacobs Oil"

And Pain is gone!

Quickly?—Yes. Almost instant relief from soreness, stiffness, lameness and pain follows a gentle rubbing with "St. Jacobs Oil."

Apply this soothing, penetrating oil directly upon the ache, and like magic, relief comes. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless backache, lumbago and sciatica cure which never disappoints, and doesn't burn the skin.

Straighten up! Quit complaining! Stop those torturous "stitches." In a moment you will forget that you ever had a back, because it won't hurt or be stiff or lame. Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacobs Oil" from your druggist now and get this lasting relief.

Dave Fultz Lifts Ban Against the Minors

NEW YORK, Jan. [illegible].—Dave L. Fultz, as president of the Baseball Players' Fraternity, today announced that the Fraternity had lifted the ban against the minor league clubs which barred the players from signing their contracts. Fultz's statement concludes:

"Although the association still persists in its arbitrary and dishonorable stand, rather than embarrass the gentlemen who have been absolutely fair in their dealings, we are notifying members that the objection to signing is withdrawn."

Attell Matched with Kilbane in Title Go

[illegible], Jan. 28.—Abe Attell, former featherweight champion, has received a message from San Francisco saying he had been matched with Johnny Kilbane, present champion, in a bout for the title. The bout probably will be March 20. Attell lost the title to Kilbane on February 22, 1912.

Thirty-Sixth Chapter

THERE was a fire in the bedroom and I sat down in front of it. Many forces were warring within me. I was trying to fix my thoughts and found it difficult to do so.

Some time passed. My husband's man came in with the noiseless step of all such persons, opened one of the portmanteaux and laid out his master's combs and brushes on the dressing table and his sleeping suit on the bed. A maid of the hotel followed him, and taking my own sleeping things out of the top tray of my trunk she laid them out beside my husband's.

"Good-night, my lady," they said in their low voices as they went out on tiptoe.

I hardly heard them. My mind, at first numb, was now going at lightning speed. Brought face to face for the first time with one of the greatest facts of a woman's life, I was asking myself why I had not reckoned with it before.

I had not even thought of it. My whole soul had been so much occupied with one great spiritual issue—that I did not love my husband (as I understood love), that my husband did not love me—that I had never once plainly confronted, even in my own mind the physical fact that is the first condition of matrimony, and nobody had mentioned it to me or ever hinted at it.

I could not plead that I did not know of this condition. I was young but I was not a child. I had been brought up in a convent, but a convent is not a nursery. Then why had I not thought of it?

While sitting before the fire, gathering together those dark thoughts, I was in such fear that I was always conscious of my husband's movements in the adjoining room. At one moment there was the jingling of his glass against decanter, at another moment the smell of his cigarette smoke. From time to time he came to the door and called to me in a sort of husky whisper, asking if I was in bed.

"Don't keep me long, little girl."

I shuddered, but made no reply.

At last he knocked softly and said he was coming in. I was still crouching over the fire as he came up behind me.

"Not in bed yet?" he said. "Then I must put you to bed."

Before I could prevent him he had lifted me in his arms, dragged me on to his knee and was pulling down my hair, laughing as he did so, calling me by coarse endearing names and telling me not to fight and struggle.

But the next thing I knew I was back in the sitting room, where I had switched up the lights, and my husband, whose face was distorted by passion, was blazing out at me.

"What do you mean?" he said. "I'm your husband, am I not? You are my wife, aren't you? What did you marry for? Good heavens, can it be possible that you don't know what the conditions of matrimony are? Is that what comes of being brought up in a convent? But has your father allowed you to marry without. . . . And your aunt—what in God's name has the woman been doing?"

I crossed toward the smaller bedroom intending to enter it, but my husband intercepted me.

"Don't be a fool," he said, catching at my wrist. "Think of the servants. Think what they'd say. Think what the whole island would say. Do you want to make a laughing-stock of both of us?"

"HAD MADE SACRIFICES"

I returned and sat by the table. My husband lit another cigarette. Nervously flicking the ends off the index finger of his left hand, and speaking quickly, as if the words scorched his lips, he told me I was mistaken if I supposed that he wanted a scene like this. He thought he could spend his time bettter. I was equally mistaken if I imagined that he had desired our marriage at all. Something quite different might have happened if he could have afforded to please himself.

He had made sacrifices to marry me too. Perhaps I had not thought of that, but did I suppose a man of his class wanted a person like my father for his father-in-law. And then my aunt and my cousins—ugh!

The bishop, too! Was it nothing that a man had been compelled to make all those ridiculous declarations? Children to be brought up Catholics! Wife not to be influenced! Even to keep an open mind himself to all the muss and mummery of the Church!

It wasn't over either. That seedy old "saint" was probably my confessor. Did any rational man want another man to come between him and his wife—knowing all he did and said, and everything about him?

I was heart-sick as I listened to all this. Apparently the moral of it was that if I had been allowed to marry without being instructed in the first conditions of married life my husband had suffered a gross and shocking injustice.

The disgust I felt was choking me. It was horribly humiliating and degrading to see my marriage from my husband's point of view, and when I remembered that I was bound fast to the man who talked to me like this, and that he could claim rights in me, tonight, tomorrow, as long as I lived, until death parted us, a wild impulse of impotent anger at everybody and everything made me drop my head on to the table and burst into tears.

My husband misunderstood this, as he misunderstood everything. Taking my crying for the last remnant of my resistance he put his arms round my shoulders again and renewed his fondling.

"Come, don't let us have any more conjugal scenes," he said. "The people of the hotel will hear us presently, and there will be all sorts of ridiculous rumors. If your family are rather common people you are a different pair of shoes altogether."

HER SIDE OF STORY

He was laughing again, kissing my neck (in spite of my shuddering) and saying:

"You really please me very much, you do indeed, and if they've kept you in ignorance, what matter? Come now my sweet little woman, we'll soon repair that."

I could bear no more. I must speak and I did. Leaping up and facing round on him I told him my side of the story—how I had been married against my will, and had not wanted him any more than he had wanted me; how all my objections had been overruled, all my compunctions borne down; how everybody had been in a conspiracy to compel me, and I had been bought and sold like a slave.

"But you can't go any farther than that," I said. "Between you, you have forced me to marry you, but nobody can force me to obey you, because I won't."

I saw his face grow paler and paler as I spoke, and when I had finished it was ashen-white.

"So that's how it is, is it?" he said, and for some minutes more he tramped about the room, muttering inaudible words, as if trying to account to himself for my conduct. At length he approached me again and said, in the tone of one who thought he was making peace:

"Look here, Mary. I think I understand you at last. You have some other attachment—that's it, I suppose. Oh, don't think I'm blaming you. I may be in the same case myself for all you know to the contrary. But circumstances have been too strong for us and here we are. Well, we're in it, and we've got to make the best of it and why shouldn't we? Lots of people in my class are in the same position, and yet they get along all right. Why can't we do the same? I'll not be too particular. Neither will you. For the rest of our lives let each of us go his and her own way. But that's no reason why we should be strangers exactly. Not on our wedding day at all events. You're a damned pretty woman and I'm —— Well, I'm not an ogre, I suppose. We are man and wife, too. So look here, we won't expect too much affection from each other—but let's stop this fooling and be good friends for a little while anyway. Come, now."

"I LOATHE YOU!"

Once more he took hold of me, as if to draw me back, kissing my hands as he did so, but his gross misinterpretation of my resistance and the immoral position he was putting me into were stifling me, and I cried:

"No, I will not. Don't you see that I hate and loathe you?"

There could be no mistaking me this time. The truth had fallen on my husband with a shock. I think it was the last thing his pride had expected. His face became shockingly distorted. But after a moment, recovering himself with a cruel laugh that made my hot blood run cold, he said:

"Nevertheless, you shall do as I wish. You are my wife, and as such you belong to me. The law allows me to compel you and I will."

The words went shrieking through and through me. He was coming toward me with outstretched arms, his teeth set, and his pupils fixed. In the drunkenness of his rage he was laughing brutally.

But all my fear had left me. I felt an almost murderous impulse. I wanted to strike him on the face.

"If you attempt to touch me I will throw myself out of the window," I said.

"No fear of that," he said, catching me quickly in his arms.

"If you do not take your hands off me I'll shriek the house down," I cried.

That was enough. He let me go and dropped back from me. At the next moment I was breathing with a sense of freedom. Without resistance on my husband's part I entered the little bedroom to the left and locked the door behind me.

Thirty-seventh Chapter

Some further time passed. I sat by the fireless grate with my chin in my hand. If the storm outside was still raging I did not hear it. I was listening to the confused sounds that came from the sitting-room.

My husband was pacing to and fro, muttering oaths knocking against the furniture, breaking things. At one moment there was a crash of glass, as if he had helped himself to brandy and then in his ungovernable passion flung the decanter into the fire grate.

Somebody knocked at the sitting room. It must have been a waiter, for through the wall I heard the muffled sound of a voice asking if there had been an accident. My husband swore at the man and sent him off. Hadn't he told him not to come until he was rung for?

At length, after half an hour perhaps, my husband knocked at the door of my little room.

"Are you there?" he asked.

I made no answer.

"Open the door."

I sat motionless.

"You needn't be afraid. I'm not going to do anything. I've something to say."

Still I made no reply. My husband went away for a moment and then came back.

"If you are determined not to open the door I must say what I've got to say from here. Are you listening?"

Sitting painfully rigid I answered that I was.

Then he told me that what I was doing would entitle him to annul our marriage—in the eyes of the church at all events.

If he thought that threat would intimidate me he was mistaken—a wave of secret joy coursed through me.

"It won't matter much to me—I'll take care it won't—but it will be a degrading business for you—invalidity and all that. Are you prepared for it?"

I continued to sit silent and motionless.

"I daresay we shall both be laughed at, but I cannot help that. We can't possibly live together on terms like these."

Another wave of joy coursed through me.

"Anyhow I intend to know before I leave the island how things are to be. I'm not going to take you away until I get some satisfaction. You understand?"

I listened, almost without breathing, but did not reply.

"I'm thinking of writing a letter to your father, and sending Hobson with it in the car immediately. Do you hear me?"

"Yes."

"Well, you know what your father is. Unless I'm much mistaken he's not a man to have much patience with your semi-romantic, semi-religious sentiments. Are you quite satisfied?"

Quite."

"Very well! That's what I'll do, then."

HEARD BELL RING

After this there was a period of quiet in which I assumed that my husband was writing his letter. Then I heard a bell ring somewhere in the corridor, and shortly afterwards there was a second voice in the sitting-room, but I could not hear the words that were spoken. I suppose it was Hobson's low voice, for after another short interval of silence there came the thrum and throb of a motorcar and the rumble of india-rubber wheels on the wet gravel of the courtyard in front of the hotel.

Then my husband knocked at my door again.

"I've written that letter and Hobson is waiting to take it. Your father will probably get it before he goes to bed. It will be a bad break on the festivities he was preparing for the village people. But you are still of the same mind, I suppose?"

I did not speak, but I rose and went over to the window. For some reason difficult to explain, that reference to the festivities had cut me to the quick.

My husband must have been fuming at my apparent indifference, and I felt as if I could see him looking at me, passionate and proud.

"Between the lot of you I think you've done me a great injustice. Have you nothing to say?"

Even then I did not answer.

"All right! As you please."

A few minutes afterwards I heard the motor car turning and driving away.

The wind had fallen, the waves were rolling into the harbor with that monotonous moan which is the sea's memory of a storm, and a full moon, like a white-robed queen, was riding through a troubled sky.

Thirty-Eighth Chapter

The moon had died out; a new day had dawned; the sea was lying as quiet as a sleeping child; far out on the level horizon the sky was crimsoning before the rising sun, and clouds of white sea-gulls were swirling and jabbering above the rocks in the harbor below the house before I lay down to sleep.

I was awakened by a hurried knocking at my door, and by an impatient voice crying:

"Mary! Mary! Get up! Let me in!"

It was Aunt Bridget who had arrived in my husband's automobile. When I opened the door to her she came sailing into the room with her new half-moon bonnet a little awry, as if she had put it on hurriedly in the dim light of early morning, and, looking at me with her cold gray eyes behind their gold-rimmed spectacles, she began to bombard me with mingled ridicule and indignant protest.

"Goodness me, girl, what's all this fuss about! You little simpleton, tell me what has happened!"

She was laughing. I had hardly ever heard Aunt Bridget laugh before. But her vexation soon got the better of her merriment.

Imaginary Objections

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

START out a boy alone on an errand, and when he reaches his destination three blocks away he is accompanied by seven boys and a dog.

This interruption to his purpose and time results in numberless rebukes from his mother and sisters, who scream at him when he leaves: "Now go quickly, and don't stop to pick up every boy you see on the way."

But do they, in the greater wisdom of their years, conduct their affairs with any greater economy of time? With no desire to excuse the boy, I claim they do not. On the contrary, they are more wasteful.

The boy gives a whistle and his boy friend comes out ready for the expedition. He never has to wait while his friend changes his clothes or makes a final dab with a powder rag, and though every boy is prodigal of time none of this waste can be charged to the curling iron.

Few girls go shopping or calling or walking alone. "I will see," said the girl who starts out at two, "if Mary can go with me."

MANY ENGAGEMENTS

Mary can go, and it is three when she is ready. "Let us go to the park," Mary may suggest. "I can't," returns the first girl, "for the reason that I promised Alice I would let her know the next time I went, so she could go. If I go without her she will be offended."

Obligation after obligation, promise after promise, to relatives, friends, mere acquaintances; all made in a spirit of graciousness, but so many and so conflicting that every girl is literally tied up in them. She promised Susan they would go for a certain walk sometime; Mary, that she would call for her when she went to town; Alice, that she would "stop by" on another outing, and another friend, that she would never take a certain trolley ride into the country again unless that friend went with her.

All this annoyance, fretting, waste of time and offending because of sheer inability to keep every obligation, has its origin in excessive dependence on one's friends. We make of our friends an obligation instead of a joy. We are like the boy who never goes and returns quickly because of the dependence he puts on the companionship of seven other boys and a dog.

We have never learned to find the support we need in ourselves. We do not shop or call or walk alone; we do not buy a text book and study alone, but must first organize a club for that purpose; we do not grieve alone, but hunt up a friend with a soft, sympathetic shoulder.

HER CONFIDANT

A girl pours into another girl's ears her love for Tom, refusing to learn that the confession will humiliate her when she is in love with Dick tomorrow and Harry the day after. We regard all emotions as permanent; our sorrows and joys as fixed and unchanging, and for the same reason that the boy cannot walk three blocks to buy a sack of sugar without the moral support of seven boys and a dog on the most trivial occasion.

The girl with one friend has much time to improve her brain and be useful. In proportion to the number of friends she has, this time for self-improvement decreases. I would not have her be friendless; I would have her keep her friends, and make more, but so conduct her intercourse with them that they cause no interference with what is best for her own development and purposes in life.

This may be done in only one way; by refusing to regard every friend as an imaginary obligation; a being to whom promises are made that tie up, and confuse, and conflict with every duty one owes to one's self.

Most Unsatisfactory

Poor old Aunt Elizabeth was a martyr to rheumatism, and was consulting her nephew, a newly fledged doctor, as to what she had better do.

She was a wealthy old lady, and her loving nephew was most anxious to make a good impression.

"You should try an electric treatment, Aunt," he said. "Electricity is life, you know, and it is especially good in overcoming your complain."

"Now, George, don't you try your new-fangled ideas on me, because I won't have it. Electricity, indeed! Stuff and nonsense! You know very well that I was struck by lightning only a few months ago, and it hasn't done me a bit of good."

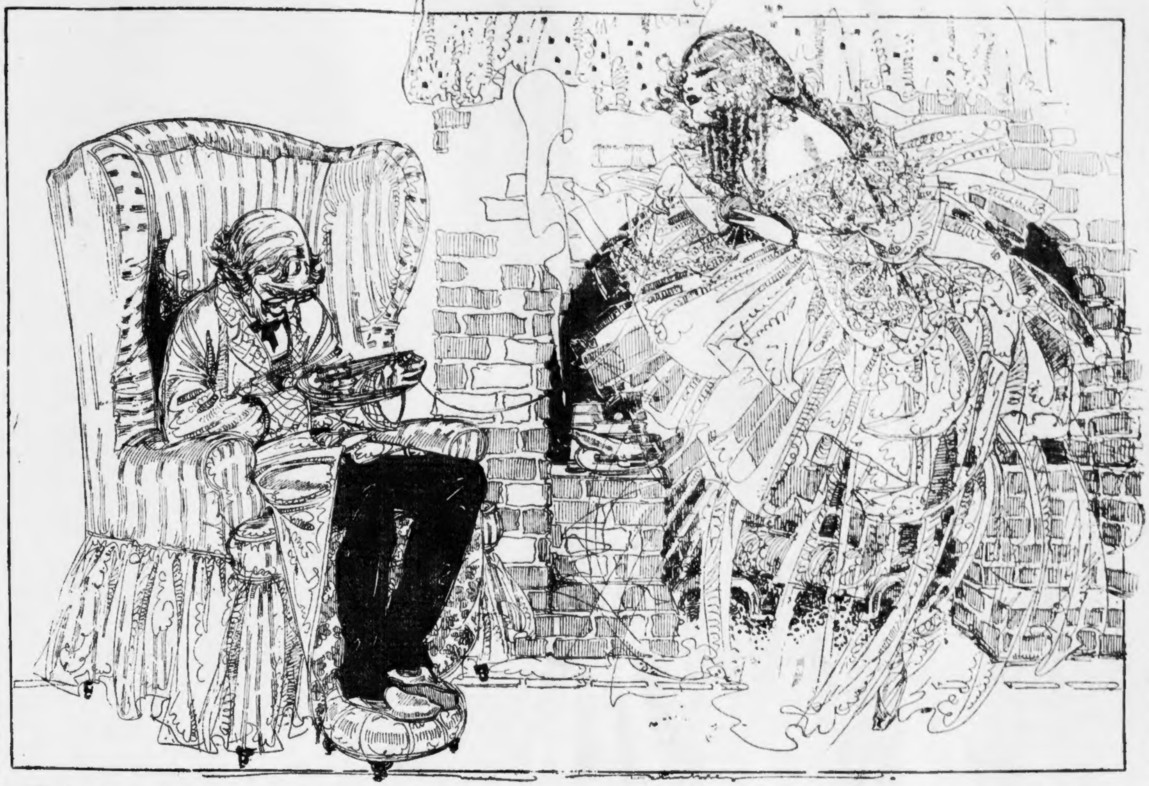
BY NELL BRINKLEY



THE white old man drowses in the chimney corner—his shriveled chin sunk into his breast, his weary, quiet feet turned sole to sole in slippers that flip when he walks, his hair in a remnant of the black lock that once fell over his brows in a wave that shone like a bird's wing, his spectacles slipped down on his pinched nose, a strange little smile in the wrinkled corner of his lips. And sometimes he heaves a soft sigh under his chin and smiles and nods his head gayly.

And the two lovers who peep in at him on their way to the frozen pond look deep into one another's eyes and whisper, "He'd never understand!"

But ah-h, wouldn't he? How can they know that his ghost—the white little wraith of a GIRL—drifts from the flames of the hearth and the dreams in his own white head, and nods and beckons and calls his name—her hair still gold after all these long dead years, her chin as softly curved as a baby bird's breast, a bit of velvet ribbon about her swiftly-moving wrist as she winds the yarn from his out-held hands? How can they know that when he sighs in his drowse she has turned her bright head to one side in the old, old trick and said, "Is THAT how much you love me?" How can they know when he smiles that he has begged again to drop her pale blue yarn and use his hungry arms for "better things," and she has wound faster and faster and denied? How can they know that he winds again the soft blue wool for a Girl whose silk and curls and slim white hands and tender mouth have long ago fallen into dust?

Ah-h-h, WOULDN'T he understand? —NELL BRINKLEY.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WIFE, sed Pa to Ma last nite wen he caim hoam, I am going away for a week. I have arranged things at the offis, & here is plenty of munny for everything. I will be back in a week, & you will be proud of me when you see me. I will be at least thirty pounds liter, Pa sed. I am gitting too fat, & I simply must taik off the weight.

But Bobbie & I could go with you, sed Ma.

No, sed Pa, that is jest the point. Neether of you wud be abel to du what I am going to do. I am going to hiber-nate.

You are going to what? sed Ma.

I am going to hiber-nate, sed Pa, like a bear. I am going out into the woods & git in the hollow of a big hollow tree & I am going to live on my own fat, the way a bear is in the habit of spending his winters.

You doant tell me, sed Ma, & what put that loony idea in yure deer hed?

Professor Pumpernickel, sed Pa, the eminent German scientist. The professor was talking to me this afternoon & he menshuned the fact that I am gitting too fat. I toald him that I dident know any way out of it, & he toald me that he always reduced every winter by going off into the woods & finding a hollow tree. Then he wud bild a big fire outside of the tree so he cud keep warm, & wen he wasent putting sticks of wood on the fire he wud be sleeping in the hollow tree, like a bear. In a week, he sed, he wud cum out as slim as Jim Corbett. He wuddent eat a thing all the whole week, & if he got thirsty he wud eat a littel snow.

Deer husband, sed Ma, sumtimes I think that the wunderful intelleck I used to worship you for is all shot to peeces. Surely you are not going to take the advice of sum old nut like this professor & go off in the woods ware you will freeze to deth or mayby starve. He wuddent go hisself, sed Ma.

Oh, yes he wud, sed Pa, he is going with me. We are both going to hibernate.

Deerest luv, sed Ma, I made a resolushun the first of the new yeer that I wud let you have yure own way neerly all of the time for the yeer 1914. Now, I am afrade I shall have to brake that resolushun. I am compelled to put a instant stop to this hiber-nating skeem of yures. I doant know who professor Pumpernickel is, & I do not care, but this is the one best bet, as you say. You are going to do all yure reducing in sum sensibel way. I do not want anybody to think that the man I married is foolish enuff to go out in the woods & hide hisself in the hollow of a tree to live on his own fat. If this professor you are talking about lived a week on his own fat, the fat must have caim out of his hed, sed Ma. Deerest, I cannot bear to have thee be a bear.

But you are complaining that I am slim no more, sed Pa, & then when I have a good, sure way of gitting thin you go & git contrary.

Not at all, sed Ma, you can fast if you want to, but this luvly littel hoam of ours is better than any hollow tree, & it is here that you must do yure ex-perimenting.

So Pa called up his frend up on the fone & told him what Ma sed, & thare is two hollow trees sumware in the woods that is going to stay hollow.

Greater Love

True Story of Boston's Little Lost Sister Who Found Herself

By JANET WRIGHT

IT was Jeanne who answered—fired by the swift flame of anger at thus seeing her sweetheart defied. Said she:

"Mamma, you don't think you can keep me here, do you? Well, you can't. I'll go with Raoul if he wants me."

She turned proudly to the young man.

Raoul stammered—hesitated. Had Jeanne's mother been a worthy woman, he could not have brought himself to accept the girl's passionate offer. But Jeanne's mother being what she was, he suddenly became resolved.

"I'll take care of you if you'll come, Jeanne," he said. "And I think you'd better—you ought not to stay here."

KNEW THE TRUTH

Jeanne for the first time in the long months of her stay with her mother voiced the bitter knowledge in her heart.

"Don't you suppose I know what she is?" she asked. And thereafter the mother and daughter were bitterest enemies till the end, though the mother made no attempt to keep the girl from going that night. She was planning a more complete revenge.

Raoul and Jeanne went away together, and Raoul found Jeanne a room in a lodging house near his own. He left her there and went to his own room. It required all his persuasion to induce the landlady to allow Jeanne to stay. Thereafter for weeks the two were simply friends. Raoul came almost daily to see Jeanne, and the girl went to school as before. Raoul paid her room rent—gave her money for board. It was their trustful plan to wait until she was of age—when they could marry without the mother's consent.

But against the strong walls of the young man's honor, and against the defenses of the girl's inborn sweetness and purity, the tide of their love beat steadily, creeping higher daily—till at length it swept over all barriers and drowned them with happiness.

Build yourself a paradise to order, and you would even then be no happier than were Jeanne and Raoul in those months of happiness. Jeanne's mother knew where the girl was living, but made no attempt to disturb her. But when at length Jeanne guessed her own condition, the mother had already found it out.

Jeanne and Raoul were together one evening—Raoul reading aloud—the girl on the floor at his feet, her head pillowed on his knees. He was stroking her hair with one hand as he read. There came a sound of heavy footsteps from below stairs in the lodging house. The two looked at each other in alarm—then sprang to their feet as Jeanne's mother appeared at the door—two policemen behind her, and the anxious landlady hovering in the background.

JEANNE IN COURT

It was the next morning in court that I first saw Jeanne. The girl was bowed beneath the weight of her own shame and misery, broken by a consciousness of guilt. Raoul sat beside her in the prisoner's pen. A more utterly sorrowful two people I never saw. When their case was called, they stood up to face the judge, but the mother—the complaining witness—could not be found, and accordingly they were held over till the following day.

Immediately thereafter I found an opportunity to talk to the girl. Raoul had secured their release on bail, and in the court corridor I won their confidence, and eventually pieced out their story as I have told it here. Marvelling at the woman who had in sheer stubborness of spirit driven her daughter into gravest peril, I went to the judge to ask him what could be done for the two.

It appeared that their cases were serious. "The charge against the man is a bad one," the judge told me. "He doesn't deny it, either. I've got to give him a heavy sentence for that. As for the girl—the best place for her is an institution—keep her there till she is twenty-one."

I cried out in protest—"That's six years, judge. You know what she would be after six years among girls of the sort that go to such an institution."

He nodded his head grudgingly.

"And the man—he doesn't deserve it. He's done nothing you might not have done in his place."

The judge blushed.

"Why don't you marry them and let them go?" I asked daringly. He protested:

"Oh, that wouldn't do at all. Besides—girl can't marry—she's too young."

"Get the mother's consent."

He shook his head. "I understand the mother is very bitter."

"Make her consent."

"Oh, I could not countenance that."

"NO THREATS, NOW"

It looked like an impasse. I felt baffled—helpless. It was as a last resort that I asked:

"Suppose I get her consent—will you marry them?"

He took the suggestion gladly—confident, no doubt, that I would fail. "All right," he agreed. "You get the mother's consent and I'll let them go. But"—sternly. "No threats, now. Don't you bullyrag that woman."

It was his most impressive judicial tones—this last remark. Yet he winked as he said it. And I went out with the confidence of success in my heart.

* * *

Before I went to find the woman I looked up her record. There was much of it; for she had again and again transgressed the laws. Something of her history I gained from the record—how she had worked in a hotel and been discharged for theft; how she had worked at other places, been charged with theft again and again, and once convicted and sentenced. This sentence had been suspended, however, and still hung over her head.

With this record as ammunition, I went to her room. She answered my knock, but made no offer to invite me in; so I brushed past her and entered the living room of her apartment, where she followed me.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

This serial is written in the form of the life story of a country girl who fell victim to conditions in Boston. The names used are all fictitious, but no character appears in the serial that is not taken from real life. No important incident occurs which has not actually happened in Boston within five years. And the conditions portrayed are minimized, rather than exaggerated.

The serial is offered as a picture of the lives of Boston's Little Lost Sisters. It is designed to shed some light on causes underlying the terrible conditions of the city; and it is hoped some remedies may be suggested.

The facts upon which the serial is based were given to the AMERICAN by one of Boston's best informed social workers, who vouches for every statement. The serial is in the form of the life story of JANET WRIGHT—one of the Little Lost Sisters who found herself—and is told by herself.

A Plain Business Proposition

Can you afford to go on suffering from biliousness, sleeplessness, heart flutter and various other troubles so often brought on by coffee drinking, just because you like coffee?

Thousands have quit coffee and are using Postum, and to their joy find that the annoying coffee troubles have quickly disappeared. Not only that, but they find Postum a delightful beverage, with a rich flavor resembling that of Old Gov't Java.

Postum, unlike coffee, contains no caffeine nor other drug. Made only from clean hard wheat, with a small per cent. of New Orleans molasses, it is a pure, wholesome food-drink which can be freely enjoyed with benefit by all the family.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be boiled 15 to 20 minutes.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A scant teaspoonful to each cup of hot water dissolves instantly.

The convenience of Instant Postum is apparent. But, when prepared according to directions both kinds are exactly the same. The cost per cup is about the same.

—Grocers everywhere sell both kinds.

If coffee don't agree, try POSTUM

"There's a Reason"

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in the afternoon, with most issues lower, but with a few showing improvement. New Haven, however, had weakened more. The money market was quiet and rates were easy, but the disposition to speculate had waned. There was less buying by the outside. More professional traders worked for lower prices. American stocks had ranged lower in London, but Canadian Pacific had received more support there. It is expected that the Bank of England will soon make a further reduction in its minimum rate of discount, but such action is not looked for tomorrow. Trading sentiment is bullish in the British metropolis, although this was not reflected in price movements there today.

In New York this afternoon gains included Canadian Pacific 1, Reading ½, Lehigh Valley ½, American Can ⅛, Amalgamated ⅛ and Baltimore & Ohio ½. Texas Company had developed sudden strength and was up 3⅛, at 146⅞. Among declines were Southern Pacific ⅜, Missouri Pacific ½, New Haven 1⅛, American Telephone ⅜, Steel ⅛, American Smelting ⅛, Northern Pacific ⅛ and Union Pacific ⅛.

The Boston market had been fairly steady at the start and later showed a tendency to touch lower levels. Trading was rather narrow. By afternoon Boston & Maine and New Haven were each off half a point, which was also the decline of United Fruit. Boston Elevated was unchanged, as was American Telephone. Coppers were quiet, Granby showing a small gain and Calumet & Arizona and North Butte slight recessions. Butte & Superior was up ⅛.

PRICES WORKED LOWER.

Most stocks sold lower when the New York market opened, although a few, including Republic Iron and Steel, International Harvester, and Baltimore & Ohio, showed gains. Among leaders Union Pacific was exceptionally weak, the effect of its decreased earnings for December and the last half of 1913 being felt. Most of the interest was in Steel. Bears hoped that the decreased earnings of the final quarter of last year would have a very depressing effect. But this speculative favorite only went off a fraction. Reports from Europe indicate that foreign steel makers are likely to ask for more products, something which will tend to advance prices on this side. Low prices have been more of a trade deterrent in this country than the falling off in orders. Business is increasing to an encouraging degree, and if more is obtained for products the industry will enjoy renewed prosperity. The latter is what steel men look for. They expect a marked improvement in the current quarter, and for trade to be really flourishing before the end of the year. The improvement is apt to be slow, however.

READING HELD UP.

Reading held up well in early trading, considering that the price tendency was downward in general. It recovered a fractional loss and fluctuated narrowly thereafter during the morning. There was continued evidence of accumulation of this issue.

Bears were persistent in their operations all through the forenoon, but the pressure was steady rather than aggressive. Traders were inclined to be cautious as to commitments in either direction. There was more concern felt for the Mexican outlook. First hour share transactions totalled around 145,000, but although the market could not be called dull, it was nevertheless heavy. Several industrials weakened, U. S. Rubber declining nearly two points without any obvious reason.

RAILROADS WERE WEAKER.

Railroads were weaker, although expectation that they will be permitted to raise freight rates was no less general. A favorable development for them was the prohibition by the Interstate Commerce Commission of special allowances in the future on switching charges or for demurrage, something which it is estimated will save transportation corporations $50,000,000 or more a year which they have been paying out in rebates.

New Haven was among the weakest of the roads during the first hour and one dispatch from New York said that some of this stock bought on its recent advance appeared to be coming on the market again. There is less hope apparently that the Department of Justice is going to be gentle in enforcing dissolution. Senator Norris of Nebraska threatens to introduce a resolution calling for an investigation of the management by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

TOBACCO STOCKS STRONG.

One second hour feature was the rise of American Tobacco and some of its sister issues, the former rising nearly four points to 249 when a plan was announced whereby its stockholders may receive Imperial Tobacco shares. There was more covering of Reading shorts and by noon the common issue of this road was a point above Tuesday's final figure. The list was then irregular, but most changes were declines. Steel, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific were steady at the lower level reached earlier.

American Smelting had recovered most of its loss. It had been the weakest of coppers. Amalgamated, Chino and Utah had sustained fractional declines. The metal market was dull but the trend of electrolytic was upward. The News Bureau received a London cablegram reading:

"Hirsch and American Smelting agencies are quoting £68—14⅝ cents for electrolytic. Amalgamated £67 10s.—14⅝ cents. There is a fair inquiry for the metal and dealers on the continent are selling at £67—14⅝ cents."

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The London copper warrants market was steady this morning, spot and futures being unchanged.

On February 1 the Charlestown Trust Company will pay its regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. to stockholders on record January 31.

FORBES URGES JAIL FOR ANY 'FRISCO GUILTY

By B. C. FORBES, Business Editor.

My comments on the Interstate Commerce Commission's Frisco report caused a flutter in financial dovecotes. Everywhere the question I raised was keenly discussed.

"Should bankers desert their properties when weakness develops or should they stand by loyally and strain every nerve to pull them through?"

The attitude taken in this column was very generally commended. Some, of course, condemned it. One person was charitable enough to suggest to a member of the AMERICAN'S financial staff that Forbes must find it a "good thing" to defend Speyer & Co. and other rich firms. Yes, it is "a good thing" to have one powerful newspaper independent enough and fearless enough to stick up occasionally for even "Wall Street bankers" when convinced that these bankers are unjustly slandered and when a short cut to popularity lies in trouncing them. I do not care to purchase popularity at such a price.

That is the only "good thing" connected with my job. To make it very plain: I don't take graft.

* * *

The able financial editor of one evening newspaper must have left a juvenile—a very juvenile—assistant in charge yesterday, for its financial comment column starts off thus:

"SHOULD BANKERS DESERT PROPERTIES?"

Mr. Forbes, of the AMERICAN, figuratively tears his hair this morning in propounding the above question arising from the Interstate Commerce Commission's criticism of the Frisco bankers. The fact overlooked in his argument is that the money used to support the Frisco in its crisis of last year came from the pockets of investors and not from the bankers. The Interstate Commerce Commission obviously sees no wrong in a banker protecting with his own funds a property behind which he has been standing for years, but it certainly should criticize the distribution among ultimate consumers of bonds of securities of a road about to default.

Does my hair-tearing friend imagine that bankers buy scores of millions of railroad or other securities to lock up in their own strong boxes? Does he fancy THAT is the function of a banker? Does he picture Morgan & Co. as having their safes stuffed with the millions upon millions of New York Central, U. S. Steel and other securities they financed? No, my dear sir, a banker's business is not to buy securities and sit on them like a setting hen; he buys to sell again, just as the grocer buys a whole cheese to sell it by the pound.

The whole 'Frisco exposure was started in this column immediately after the receiver was so suddenly decided upon. I happened to learn something of the inside facts. Appearances then were against Speyer & Company and I said so in very emphatic language. My strictures brought an official statement from them. I also went straight to Mr. Yoakum, accused him of having done certain things and having failed to do others. I asked him for a denial. He sat silent for quite a spell and then said he preferred to remain silent.

Unfortunately, Speyer & Co. were not summoned by the Interstate Commerce Commission to supply detailed information of its part in the 'Frisco scandal. The commission elected to condemn them unheard. So far not one act reflecting upon the honor of the firm has been brought to light. If the commission has ample grounds for its sweeping condemnation of the firm why not publish them?

NOBODY GUILTY OF WRONGDOING IN THE FRISCO SCANDAL SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO ESCAPE JAIL. THAT IS THE STAND THE AMERICAN TOOK AT THE START AND STILL TAKES. AND IF NO CELLS ARE FILLED THEN JUSTICE IS FLOUTED.

My belief is now, as it was when I wrote the first line on the subject last May, that the wrecking of the road by inside flim-flamming invites drastic legal steps by the government—and that such steps must and will be taken.

French bankers raised a howl when the Frisco collapsed. They were mortified, they declared. How ever could they face their clients who bought new Frisco bonds only a few weeks earlier? It was awful, the way they had been swindled. Prince Poniatowski rushed over here and loudly berated American international bankers for having cruelly misled French financiers in various deals which he enumerated. I wrote an article on his statements, but did not print it. I kept the manuscript and cannot do better than give extracts from it now in view of this week's happenings:

"Some of the French newspapers were quick to quote the strictures passed upon American bankers by Prince Poniatowski. The French have been posing as martyrs. The truth is that [illegible] the banks and banking houses in Paris that float foreign securities court profit. The reputation and standing of Prince Poniatowski's own pet institution, the Banque Privee, are not to be compared with the integrity and record of the best American banking firms upon whom he cast aspersions.

"When Prince Poniatowski called the roll of financial crimes that had been perpetrated upon guileless French bankers and investors he was careful to conceal the extortion exacted by the Banque Privee and similar organizations for securing admission of American securities to the French market, but he did not hesitate to throw mud at our international bankers. He specifically held up to righteous condemnation the offering in Paris of Westinghouse notes just before the company's bankruptcy, and unfairly caused Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who had done some Westinghouse banking to be criticized in the matter.

* * *

"Let me tell the Prince and other French bankers and investors that the crime he cited was committed, not by American bankers, but wholly by those of his own country. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. did NOT handle the offering in any way whatever. They did NOT sell it to the French vendors. (These notes, by the way, proved a thoroughly sound investment and never defaulted in their interest.)

* * *

"Speyer & Co. were also criticised by the Prince for placing Frisco bonds in France within so short a time of the system's collapse. The Prince waxed very wroth. If the Prince had first taken the trouble to ascertain the facts he would have learned—if he did not already know—that Speyer & Co. sold the bonds on a commission of three-fourths of 1 per cent., at a price below 80. At this figure a 5 per cent. bond is not a gilt-edged investment; it is distinctly speculative. But the Prince's fraternity, the badly treated Parisian bankers, mulcted their customers to the tune of 10 points more, pocketing a profit that would have caused a scandal if attempted in New York.

"The investor who paid the extortion levied by the French bankers was misled into believing he was being given an investment, not a gamble.

* * *

"There are in existence in Paris today a number of banks, banking firms and private bankers who coax American and other interests to let them place in France new issues of doubtful stability as long as fat commissions are earned. To use American vernacular, the 'rake-off' by these Parisian bankers is nothing more or less than graft—'honest graft,' they would no doubt call it. Inasmuch as the small investors are entirely in the hands of these bankers, such tactics suggest robbing children of playthings.

* * *

"Prince Poniatowski, instead of slandering American international bankers, could find more fitting employment trying to remove beams from the eyes of his own Parisian confraternity than in pointing to motes in the eyes of American bankers. It would be very easy to supply him with a list of likely patients."

* * *

Had the French bankers not raised the price of the Frisco bonds from the price of a rank speculation to the price of an investment issue, French investors would have had less occasion for chagrin over subsequent events.

WHY RAW FOODS ARE BAD FOR US.

Science discovers that unless we cook what we eat we takes into our systems various poisons and microbes which are liable to cause indigestion and perhaps even cancer.

HAVE COLOR IN YOUR CHEEKS

Be Better Looking — Take Olive Tablets.

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

If you want a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after-effects. They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box.

Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O. All druggists.

$1,000.00 For You

WE are here presenting an opportunity to every high grade workman to accumulate a thousand dollars, upon a plan that is well within his ability.

You pay us a small sum down and a small sum monthly for a short time.

We invest the money in planting Orange, Lemon and Grape Fruit Trees on our Plantation in Citrus Colony, Cuba.

The trees will be brought to a profitable fruit bearing stage in four years, when they will be worth at least $20.00 each and will yield at least $4.00 per year profit per tree.

You will then own five shares of the Company stock, which will have a value of $1,000, and that will probably pay in dividends from 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. per annum on that valuation.

You can never get rich upon saving alone. Saving is the start of every fortune, but wise investment and co-operation is necessary to accumulate a fortune.

You are conversant with the present high prices for everything in the food line, especially fruits. Why not be one of those to get the profit from these high prices?

Our people are becoming more and more a fruit eating people, and are increasing greatly in the use of oranges and grape fruits.

We are authorized by the State of Massachusetts to issue $250,000 worth of Stock, and we are going to make this Stock worth a million dollars. We want you to be one of those to share in this profit and we have arranged easy payments so that it will be well within your ability.

In no place in the world can these fruits be raised cheaper and better than it can on our plantation in Citrus Colony, Cuba.

We do not have to fertilize or irrigate and there is absolutely no frost to injure the trees and we have no other serious difficulties to contend with.

Other men make money in wise investment. Why not you?

Full particulars and illustrated pamphlets mailed free without obligation.

Do You Laugh with Your Eyes Shut?—Or Open?

Do You Shut Your Hand with the Thumb Inside or Outside of the Fingers?

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

The proper study of mankind is NOT man.

Pope was mistaken about that. The proper study of mankind is the outside universe—the machine in which man is a mere microbe.

It would be foolish for a microbe to write, "The proper study of microbe-kind is the microbes." It is just as foolish to say that the proper study of mankind is man.

A microbe with an opportunity to study things more important would be foolish to study only microbes.

And the man, who for a brief moment can look away from his own little home to study a thousand suns, would be a great goose if he confined himself to studying the other little human microbes.

Once in a while, however, it is permissible for man to study man, for a change, and amuse himself by noticing the peculiarities of the little human germs that are put here to cultivate this planet, take care of it, drain its swamps, irrigate its deserts and incidentally develop a respectable human race.

Therefore, when you tire of refuting the nebular hypothesis, when you give up the effort to reconcile a suffering world and an omnipotent creator, or the effort to digest the horrible problems of infinite space and unending time, you will find relief in studying the LITTLE things.

When an ordinary barefooted Asiatic is testifying as a witness the judge watches his feet to see if he tells the truth. Is not that interesting?

The poor Asiatic native has learned to control his features, and to lie with a solemn facial gravity that would deceive his own mother.

But he has not learned to control his feet. And when he begins to tell lies he begins to twiddle his toes. Study that psychologically.

You know why smoking is a bad thing for human beings. It is bad, not chiefly because nicotine gets into the blood and poisons you, BUT BECAUSE WHEN YOU SMOKE YOU HOLD YOUR HEAD BACK TO BLOW THE SMOKE UP INTO THE AIR, AND WHEN YOU HOLD YOUR HEAD BACK YOU CAN'T THINK. That is true; never mind what Bismarck said to the contrary.

While you are smoking, tilting your head backward, and blowing the smoke toward the ceiling, you are wasting time, because you are not thinking. When you THINK you put the head down, trying to concentrate energy and blood supply in the front brain, where thought is born.

That, also, is interesting. But it won't stop your smoking—which is just as well, perhaps, for we all do SOMETHING foolish, and smoking is mild folly.

It is interesting, also, to observe whether you or your friends laugh with your eyes SHUT, or your eyes OPEN.

Little children, and grown-up human beings that have remained children, in spirit, shut their eyes tight when they laugh.

It is pleasant to see young boys and girls laughing with their eyes shut. Their laughter seems very mirthful, very pleasing. Little children that shut their eyes tight and laugh are very pretty.

But if you laugh with your eyes open, and a rather cold look, you can comfort yourself with the thought that you are not quite so pretty—but probably a little higher up in the intellectual scale.

When you shut your fist naturally, do you put the thumb outside of the fingers or inside of the fingers?

"They say" that the individual who shuts his hand with the thumb inside will be ruled by others. He who shuts his hand with the thumb outside will rule.

But, "they say" may be mistaken. It does seem probable, however, that those physically stronger, and inherently capable of delivering a strong blow, would shut the hand with the thumb out. Whether it is desirable or not, to be of a nature that can deliver hard blows, you must decide.

How do you talk into the telephone?

Do you bow and smile and make faces at it, when you are saying "Good morning!" to a friend? Or have you become a real telephone user? And do you talk all sorts of friendly things into the telephone, with no change of expression on your face?

That should interest you, for it has a meaning. Some people step away from the telephone, and make a small bow when they say "Good morning!"

Are your ears laid back flat against your head, or do they stand out?

It is considered more beautiful to have them flat against the head. But they are better ears for use when they stand out. An ear standing out catches the sound as it comes FROM IN FRONT. It does not catch the sound so well from behind, as the projecting ear shuts it off. But as we are no longer in much danger of troubles from behind, probably the projecting ear, barring the ugliness, is the kind most desirable.

Does your face change as you get older?

IT OUGHT TO.

A successful man, as he gets older, usually sees his nose get bigger.

And he ought to notice his lower jaw come out. Determination and the exercise of will power bring out the jaw. Many a man in old age, who has lived, worked, thought and willed determinedly, has his lower jaw half an inch farther out than it was when he started as a young man.

Women ought to notice considerable change in their foreheads as years pass. If they use their brains they will find that their foreheads get higher and straighter. And they will find other changes in the shape of the skull.

A man who thinks very hard dies with a skull very much thinner than it would have been if he had thought less. And that is interesting.

Taken all together, this is a wonderful world.

Cornell University recently issued a pamphlet dealing with the cabbage louse.

This very small creature and its wife—just two of them, if they were left alone and none of their children died—would, inside of a few months, produce a mass of cabbage lice greater in bulk than this planet on which we live, a Roosevelt ideal.

That seems big. But the very intelligent man who announced the discovery of the electron theory of atomic construction says in his book, "Two New Worlds," that there exists a super-world in which beings like ourselves, only bigger, are so huge that they might contain in one corner of their eye a little grain of dust as big as our sun, which is a million times as big as our earth.

Such things as that are too dreadful to think of. They make us seem too unimportant.

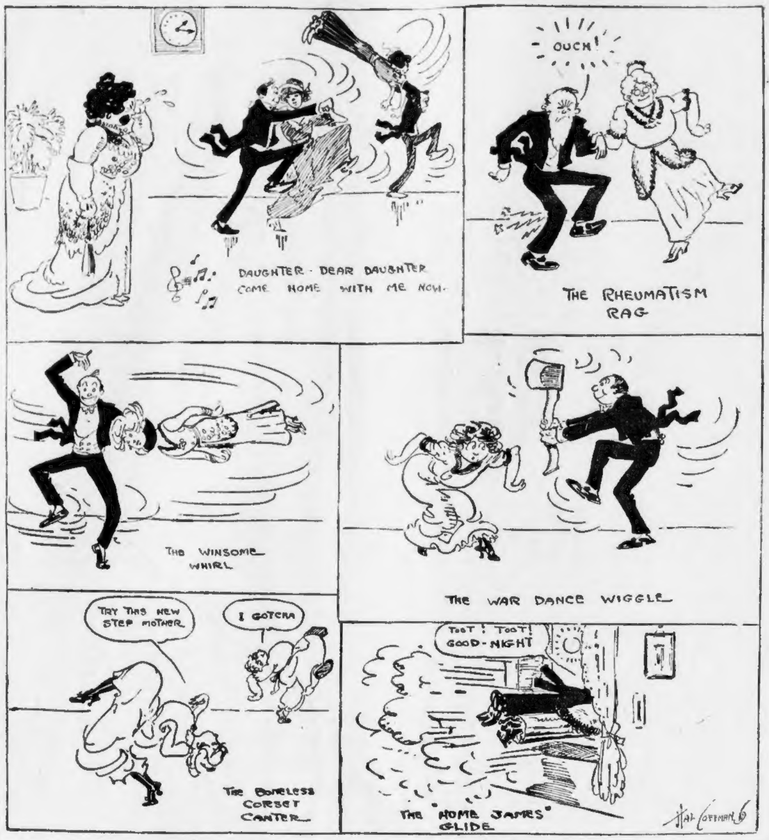
But this you might remember, as you go about the city shopping, or doing something else, taking your little boy or girl with you.

Do not walk any faster than a child can walk comfortably, or, if you do, carry the child in your arms.

You have seen little children three and four years old, and even younger, dragged along by the arm by some parent in a hurry. While the parent takes one step, the little child takes four.

If you want to understand that kind of brutality, take hold of a swiftly-moving automobile and see how you like being dragged along. That's all of THIS editorial.

TANGOITIS



John Anderson, My Jo

(MODERNIZED)

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

JOHN ANDERSON, my Jo. John, when first we were acquent
Wi' poverty an' woe, John; your brawny back was bent,
You earned but little siller, John, in days of long ago,
An' ragged were the cloes ye wore, John Anderson, my Jo.

But times has changed wi' us, John; no longer down the street
When comin' hame from work, John, ye drag an' auld man's feet.
But at the cabaret, John, a lively foot ye throw
At one-step tango an' mattiche, John Anderson, my Jo.

Your age is sixty-eight, John, but wi' them evening cloes
An' fancy vest an' pleated shirt an' shiny silken hose
An' face massage an' diamond studs ye're quite the modern beau,
An' a' the girls they trot wi' you, John Anderson, my Jo.

Each afternoon ye go, John, to some new The dansant,
And practice dips and turkey trots like some young debutante.
Though all night long rheumatics, John, may tie you in a bow,
You're on the job next afternoon, John Anderson, my Jo.

An' boys o' twenty-twa, John, they look at ye an' stare
An' shake their pallid, weary heads in envious despair.
"We'd better quit the game," they say; "It isn't any fun
To have your best girls all copped out by auld John Anderson."

John Anderson, my Jo, when first ye caud me "Dear"
I thought I' greet above ye're grave ere ye reached fifty year;
But livelier ye get, John, as aulder still ye grow,
I dinna ken the ways o' men, John Anderson, my Jo.

In-Shoots

When a man becomes famous all the knockers in his neighborhood begin to sit up and look around.

Some men imagine that fate is against them if they do not find a fifty-dollar pearl in every fifteen-cent oyster stew.

The man who lingers at first base will never make a home run.

Blessings are often disguised; but curses can always be recognized.

When the human door mat turns he is liable to be as fierce as a hungry wolf.

Of course, a lot of tax collectors may get into heaven, but they will not work at it.

It is more difficult for most men to stand success than to endure grief.

The angelic woman does not always wear the skirts and plumage of the artist's dream.

The Two Sisters

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

JULIA pressed the question no further. Affairs had now reached a point where both girls were keeping things from each other. Julia did not mention the fact that Delaine had asked her to lunch with him, nor that he had inquired of her whether she wrote for publication or not. The question she had forgotten for the time; she did not speak of the invitation lest it should distress her sister further.

Caryl had many things which she did not tell, but for reasons very different from those that led to Julia's reticence. Caryl knew her sister would disapprove of her acceptance of Somerdyke's attentions, also that she would be horrified could she know of the falsehoods told to both Somerdyke and Delaine—not to mention the lie told to Julia herself, about Delaine's having asked her—his stenographer—to lunch with him today.

Especially did she appreciate that she must use diplomacy to extricate herself from her present predicament with Delaine, and if Julia knew of the position she was in she would forbid her telling any more lies to explain those she had already told. Therefore both of the girls talked lightly and rapidly of any matters except those occupying their thoughts.

But under all her seeming indifference Julia Marvin was conscious of a feeling of hurt at the revelation made by Caryl of the nature of Kelley Delaine. Somehow she had felt her little sister was safe with him, and yet he had asked this inexperienced child to lunch with him on the second day that she was in his employ. Of course, other men did that kind of thing—but he had seemed different from other men. If his action was not actually improper, it was certainly unconventional. How foolish it was to trust any man anyhow! They were probably all alike!

But she said nothing of all this, but to put the matter from her mind, glanced at her watch and remarked that if they would not be late for dinner, it was time they got ready. To which suggestion Caryl agreed without demur.

Stars and Stripes

The Administration trust policy is not "Let us have peace!" but "Let us have pieces!"

Strange that the makers of the tariff do not give it credit for bringing down the temperature.

The twenty-ninth of February seems to be the only day Mr. Huerta has not designated as a band holiday.

"A girl tugs harder at the heart-strings than a boy," declares a writer. To say nothing of the purse strings.

The tatao, a Chinese dance dating from 4,500 B. C., has been introduced to oust the tango. "Tatao" means sweetness and harmony.

"Do you think rusty thoughts?" asks a woman lecturer. Sorry we must admit thinking very rusty thoughts when the pipes freeze.

We now learn that Professor Taft has an automobile. He probably uses it to send his trousers to and fro between his house and the tailor's.

Eggs are now imported from China. Has somebody invented an edible China egg?

Unhappy Florence Schenck's Deathbed Message

In an article dictated three days before her death, Florence Schenck, the gay, wilful beauty who realized the fatal folly of her misspent life when it was too late, sounds a warning to other women who may be tempted as she was.

This amazing article is one of the big exclusive features in next Sunday's AMERICAN, which will also print the following:

"Why I Shot Wm. E. Annis"—By Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., U. S. A.:

Second chapter in the surprising revelation of the real facts which lay behind this appalling domestic tragedy.

Why I Believe the Whale Swallowed Jonah:

The Rev. Dr. Luther T. Townsend frames an ingenious and scientific defence of the famous Biblical story along the lines of "higher criticism."

The New Plan to Give Us Just What We Pay For:

Dishonest manufacturers to be forced to tell when they put tin in "pure silk," sell cotton shoddy for "all wool" and make shoes with paper soles.

Why Raw Foods Are Bad for Us:

Science discovers unless we cook what we eat we take into our system various poisons and microbes which are liable to cause indigestion and perhaps even cancer.

Sketched on Paris Boulevards:

A page of new and very amusing drawings in color of women in the French capital as they look to Sacchetti, the famous French cartoonist.

A Queen Who Is Always in Debt:

How her financial affairs prove Alexandra, the Dowager Queen of England, one of the worst business women who ever had full control of a great fortune.

Why Birds Find Their Way Home Better Than We Can:

Odd new facts which explain why some persons are always "getting turned around" while others seldom, if ever, "lose their bearings."

What to Do When Your Eyes Go Wrong:

You can cure a "cold" in the eye without going to an oculist if you follow the simple advice given here.

Solving the Problem of "The Unemployed"

By REV. C. F. AKED, D. D., LL. D.

IT flashed upon me one day as I rested amid Alpine snow and ice that I had never seen a tramp in Switzerland. My knowledge of the "Playground of Europe" goes back many years. I began to find my way to Switzerland in the early nineties. More than twenty years ago I started to walk across Switzerland from Lucerne to Geneva. Since that day, sometimes on foot and sometimes awheel, I have traversed its hills and valleys. Was it really the case that I had never met a tramp?

On reflection I had to admit that I had sometimes pased on the road pedestrians who were obviously workingmen. Clearly they were "on the tramp," making a journey from town to town, with their little kit on their back, a few tools, some scanty clothing. But I was quite clear that I had not once been asked for money. They might be seeking work. They certainly were not begging.

Throughout Germany the "relief station" is a recognized institution. Switzerland has copied Germany, and is said to have bettered its instruction. The German-speaking cantons of Switzerland have brought the system to a high degree of perfection. Relief stations are found on the main roads at intervals of about ten miles. The genuine "unemployed," walking from place to place in search of work, enters and claims relief as a right.

There is no charity. There is no pauperism. His name, age, trade, original address and the like are registered, and then he is given dinner. If he chooses to stay the night to try his luck in the town next day he has supper, bed and breakfast. An attempt is made by the management to introduce him to employers. If he is badly in need of clothing or boots, he may be supplied with something wearable.

If he finds no work there and decides to push on, he receives a certificate which he must present at the next place.

These stations are not maintained by private philanthropy. They are supported from public funds, partly by the communes, but to a greater extent from the cantonal purse. The loafer is weeded out by sensible regulations, such as refusal of relief if the man has done no work during three months, or if he refuses work offered to him there and then. The itinerant workman, whom we must not call "tramp," is assured of wholesome food, a comfortable bed and decent company.

Some of the large towns of Switzerland have made commendable efforts to deal with incorrigible loafers and lazy vagabonds, the reproach of their fellows, the despair of philanthropists. Berne, for instance, a quarter of a century ago, took steps to deal with this class. The City Council decided that the time had come when the depraved, the vicious, the lazy, who had become a charge to the community, and "whose detention was justifiable in the public interest," should be dealt with by some other than existing methods.

The city "workhouse" is a house of work! The building is surrounded by a great farm. If a man has a trade he is set to work at it. There are workshops in abundance; tailors and smiths, bakers and shoemakers, joiners and basketmakers, have their workrooms. If a man has no trade the farm and the gardens receive him. If he is capable and willing to learn, he is taught; if he will not learn, he is kept at unskilled toil.

With its powers of compulsory detention, Berne has been able to remove from the streets both men and women who had become a pest to society and a danger to themselves, and with these productive farms and factories has been able to make them contribute largely to their own maintenance.

Questions Answered

T. F. M.—Instinct is a generic term comprising all those faculties of mind which lead to the conscious performance of actions that are adoptive in character, but pursued without necessary knowledge of the relation between the means employed and the ends attained. It is hardly necessary to remark that sometimes "instinct" comes so close to "reason" that it is almost impossible to distinguish between them.

H. P. C.—There was no actual Abbey of Thelema. It was a dream of the great Rabelais—a very beautiful dream, too—and if you wish to know all about it you will simply have to read the last seven chapters of Rabelais' "Gargantua." On page 163 of William Henry Hudson's delightful book, "The Story of the Renaissance," you will find a charming reference to the "Abbey of Thelema," which you would do well to read.

F. M. R.—Disabuse your mind at once of the idea that "Creoles" are crosses between whites and negroes, Indians or some other non-white breed. Creole is a term originally used to designate an inhabitant of the Spanish colonies who was descended from the European settlers, as distinguished from the aborigines, the negroes and mulattoes. The same thing applies to the "French Creoles." The French Creole is the descendant of the original French settlers in this country, and is in no sense a negro, Indian or other non-Caucasian person.
